CHAMBERLAIN TO BARE NEW, DRASTIC STEPS

Britain Says She'll No Longer Remain Passive While Nazis Defy International Law.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain intends to inform the house of commons tomorrow that the allies have decided on a drastic tightening of their blockade in an attempt to cripple, if not to paralyze, Germany's vitally important iron ore supplies from the Norwegian North sea port of Narvik, it was understood today.

The action which the allies have agreed to take may necessitate a technical infringement of Norwegian territorial waters through which German merchantmen are now plying between Narvik and Baltic sea ports, it was said.

The decision to intensify the allied blockade, especially as regards the German supply of iron ore, may be announced to Norway implicitly if not directly in a note to be dispatched probably within the next two days, neutral diplomats heard.

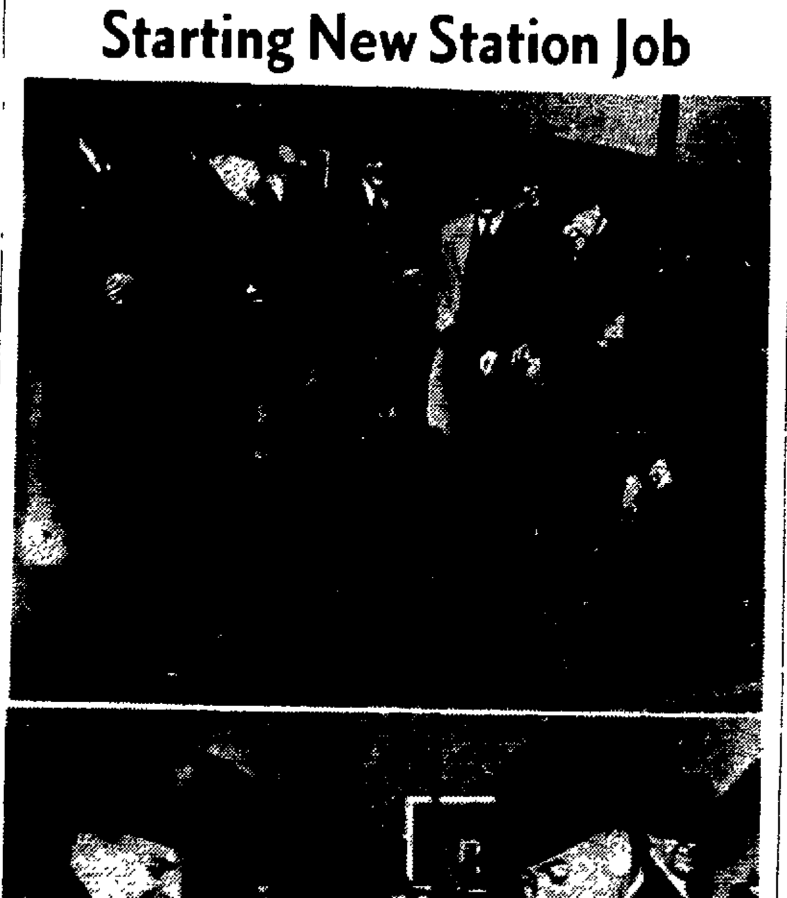

Informants said that, in the proposed note, Great Britain would cite the Altmark and other cases as evidence that Germans had been flagrantly disregarding Norwegian neutrality.

It was forecast also that Britain would make it plain that the allies could no longer remain passive while, in their view, Germany was defying all international law.

There were reports that in the same note, or by other means, Britain might make it plain that in event of another Russian attack

Mayor Wields Shovel, Starts Work On New Pennsy Station

Minus the fanfare the event might have had, ground was broken today at 9:30 a. m. for the $75,000 modernization of the Pennsylvania railroad station.

F. R. Rex, superintendent of the eastern division of the Pennsylvania company, was in charge of the ceremony which was attended by city officials and members of the Chamber of Commerce special committee, which had worked for years to obtain improved station facilities.

Mayor William J. Locke wielded a shovel, and C. L. Van Derau, president of the Chamber of Commerce, tackled a big wrench and loosened bolts on tie plates.

Looking on interestedly, and offering helpful advice from time to time, were S. Glen Vinson, president of Ideal Electrical and Manufacturing company; L. E. Osborne, manager of manufacturing and engineering at Westinghouse; C. of C. Secretary John G. Routzon and Robert Miller, his assistant, John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal, and other officials of the railroad.

Rex estimated that three months would be needed to complete the

LAST TRIBUTE PAID GRIFFITH AT RITES TODAY

Selection of Successor to Mt. Gilead Publisher Gives G. O. P. Problem.

Friends and political colleagues paid a final tribute today to Earl Griffith, 52-year-old secretary of state and Mt. Gilead newspaper publisher who died Saturday of a heart attack.

Mr. Griffith was buried in Rivercliff cemetery in nearby Mt. Gilead this afternoon following funeral services at 2:30 p. m. at the Methodist church where his body laid in state for two hours preceding the funeral. Rev. Alex Hawks, Episcopal rector of Mt. Vernon, delivered the sermon.

Honorary pallbearers were Gov. John W. Bricker, Lieutenant Gov. Paul M. Herbert, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, State Republican Chairman Ed. D. Schorr, Mayor James P. Bennett of Mt. Gilead, Dr. John M. Thomas of Columbus, who had been chairman of Griffith's campaign committee, and J. C. Williamson of Napoleon, who had been secretary of the campaign committee.

Mr. Griffith suffered a heart attack a week ago today in his office in the state house. He appeared to be improving by the middle of last week, but suffered a relapse. He had suffered from asthma for years and this was believed to have induced the heart ailment.

Gov. Bricker will appoint a successor to Mr. Griffith to serve until the November election.

Dispatches from Columbus said the selection of an appointee presented an immediate problem for state Republican leaders and that attention had already been turned to the choice of a possible "write-in" candidate to take Griffith's place on the May 14 primary ballot.

Griffith's death left Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati the only candidate for the nomination qualified for a place on the ballot and reliable sources predicted that he would not receive organization support.

It was considered possible that Bricker's appointee to the office also would be supported by the

LISTS 11TH HOUR CENSUS SHIFTS

Harper Completes Enumerating Staff for County; Work Starts Tomorrow.

Eleventh-hour changes in the list of Richland county census enumerators who will launch the 16th decennial "head-count" at 9 a. m. tomorrow along with enumerators in the rest of the nation, were announced today by Don Harper, district census director at Mt. Vernon.

The changes include the appointment of four workers to take the place of four who withdrew and five additional appointments to boost the census crew to 64 workers. A total of 59 were named last week, as part of the 271 in the six-county 17th congressional district.

The appointments include Catherine Fisher, Mrs. Robert DeHaven, Irene Black, Mrs. Harry Foltz, Mrs. Evelyn Dent, Mrs. Rita Touby, Guy Goldsmith, and Samuel Peterson, all of Mansfield, and Faustin M. Doenau, Shelby.

Enumerators will set out tomorrow on the two-week survey. They will canvas an estimated 132,000,000 Americans for population facts, housing statistics and farm data to bring a 150 year-old story up to date.

The census was delayed a day to avoid the practical jokes of All-fool's day, but officials said that the enumerators were prepared to meet ordinary front-door difficulties.

"On the controversial income question," Harper said, "enumerators have been instructed to issue a special blank to any person who objects to answering the question.

"This blank can either be filled out in private and enclosed in a franked envelope furnished by the government to be mailed directly to Washington or handed back to the census taker.

WILKES BARRE, Pa. — (U.P) —Gasoline escaping from a break in a storage tank added today to the hazards of the grief-stricken residents of the flooded areas of the Wyoming valley.

(By United Press)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Dikes along the turbulent Susquehanna river broke today as flood waters which drove more than 10,000 persons from their homes and inundated large sections of the Wyoming valley, began receding.

The dike on Narrows road, between Plymouth and Kingston, was the first to give way. Smaller dikes in the section then broke.

Water from the Narrows road dike menaced the entire community of Kingston and residents were ordered to prepare to evacuate their homes.

At 8 a. m. the river had dropped from a high of 31.30 at 6:30 a. m. to 31.23. John Mirmak, official observer, added however that the drop may not mean that the crest has been reached.

The Lehigh, Delaware, Schuylkill and Juniata rivers still were rising.

Sections of Wilkes-Barre, Kingston, Plymouth, Edwardsville, Forty-Fort, Pringle, Scranton, Sayre, Williamsport, Sunbury, Harrisburg and other communities were inundated.

In Plymouth the flood waters were within two blocks of the business district and one block from the home of Gov. Arthur H. James, who cancelled a speaking tour of the state to go back to Harrisburg and direct relief work.

F. D. R. HAS FLU

President Better But Illness Continues to Plague Him.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The White House, disclosing for the first time that President Roosevelt had been combatting an attack of intestinal influenza, said today he would visit his Hyde Park, N. Y., home this week-end.

Mr. Roosevelt has been reported suffering from a persistent cold and there has been talk of a trip to Warm Springs, Ga., but Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the Georgia visit would be deferred until later in the month.

Mr. Roosevelt's temperature has been normal for several days, Early said, but the effects of the "flu" still are "very slightly in evidence in the stomach area." The illness has cleared away, he added, except for "an occasional gaseous condition.

'Wild Party' Death Of Girl, 18, Still Puzzles Doctors

DETROIT—(AP)—The cause of the death of 18-year-old Charlotte Cranson last Saturday during a "wild party" aboard the U. S. S. Dubuque remained a mystery today despite an autopsy by five physicians.

Chemical analysis were ordered to clarify certain phases of the post-mortem examination.

The physicians, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and naval officers directing the inquiry refused to comment, but other authorities offered observations.

"The autopsy revealed a lot," William E. Dowling, chief assistant prosecuting attorney, said cryptically.

Four possible causes of death are under consideration, said Inspector John O. Whiteman of the police homicide squad.

Miss Cranson died during an all-night party on the naval reserve training vessel anchored in the Detroit river at the naval armory.

Inspector Whitman said three young couples, all under 21 years old, attended the party. The five survivors have been held for questioning.

VOTE DELAYED

Trade Program's Foes File Series of Amendments.

WASHINGTON —(U.P)— Opponents of the administration's reciprocal trade program delayed a final vote on its extension today with a series of amendments designed to give congress a stronger voice in drafting trade agreements.

Democratic leaders predicted a final vote by Wednesday on the house-approved bill to extend the act for three years. Republicans and western Democrats, however, said it might be later before the bill could survive the proposed amendments.

Confronting the senate today was a proposal by Sen. Pat McCarran, D., Nev., to prohibit Secretary of State Cordell Hull from disturbing existing excise taxes on coal, oil, lumber and copper.

Murder Ring Prober Told of Wholesale Slaying Plans.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A threat to wreck District Attorney William O'Dwyer's prosecution of the Brooklyn murder syndicate by wholesale slaying of witnesses was revealed today as a special grand jury was seated to grind out indictments.

O'Dwyer disclosed that Harry (Happy) Maione, named as one of the "vice presidents" of the cut-rate slaying mob, had defiantly declared:

"So that fellow in Brooklyn wants to get busy, eh? All right, we'll drop packages all over Brooklyn for him."

"Packages" in gangland parlance means the bodies of potential witnesses against the mobsters and O'Dwyer said that Happy would move to "spring" his brother Louis, now held on vagrancy charges, to aid in the terrorism.

Joke's On April Fool Day, Nobody Tries To Pull Gags

The biggest April Fool joke today must have been on the April Fool idea for most Mansfielders, reports indicated, escaped the fruitless trips and surprises that usually come with the first day of April.

In Philadelphia, however, a radio station and its listeners were victimized last night by the publicity director of the Franklin institute who announced that the world would end at 3 p. m. Monday.

Police stations newspapers and the city information bureau were flooded with calls from frightened listeners who heard the broadcast.

"This is no April Fool joke," the announcer said.

The publicity director of the institute admitted he made the announcement as a stunt to arouse interest in the opening of a show at the planetarium. He said he told "some people at the station" about the announcement and "thought they would know it was a stunt."

From Washington, D. C., Fred Orsinger, chairman of the Association for the Prevention of April Fool Jokes, tried to keep his fellow men from falling into pitfalls.

"The telephone joker," he said, "is the most common. I figure he'll consume more than 8,000,000 man hours of work throughout the nation today."

CENSUS TO GET FACTS WE'D ALL LIKE TO KNOW

There Are a Lot of Reasons For the Questions to Be Asked You This Week.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last of a series of articles on what the "battle of the census" is all about, written by an Associated Press expert.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—The census is the romance of America all bound up in blue-green volumes.

Those books tell of the joys and tragedies, successes and failures of the people who, for 150 years, have been making our land what it is today—the world's richest and most powerful democracy. You and I can't read this epic of America. It's set down in millions of Arabic numerals.

But the wizards with slide rules in the census bureau can see the romance. Their facts often are closer to the hearts of Americans than many a historian ever got.

Of course, like all accounts of romance, the census account has its up and downs and its blind spots. There have been padded figures in years past. And it took two censuses to lift the automobile from the class of "miscellaneous machinery" into its place as a great modern industry.

But by and large, census statisticians have been uncannily accurate for 150 years and they've gone deep into the life of America for keys to secrets of the future.

Broken Hearts Department.

A census wizard knows more about love than Hollywood He can tell you the depression had left 550,00 broken hearts among American women up to 1937. This year enumerators expect to find 500,000 of these, still broken.

Those half million broken hearts represent women who would have been married if the depression hadn't prevented it. The men who would have married them have since taken wives—but they picked younger women, leaving a lost generation of spinsters.

The census experts could have told John Steinbeck in 1930 to head out west to find material for his story of the miserable Joad family. Statisticians knew then the greatest migration of modern times was on full force and playing havoc with their slide rules.

They can even tell you the turkey and chicken population of the United States.

What's all their data worth to anybody?

Starting with the turkeys and chickens, literally thousands of business houses and millions of farmers want to know what that population is. Sixty-seven types of business concerns are asking, including florists in the market for strong fertilizer.

The lost generation of spinsters and the divorce question, on the census for the first time in 1930, will give the census men enough figures so that your school board will know for sure whether a new school house will be needed in your town in the next ten years.

Those things help count the fertility rate of American women. Unless a divorced woman tells about the children of her previous marriage, part of her fertility record is lost, and the rate of population gain or loss becomes inaccurate.

With death data, this fertility question is an index to the rate of population growth, and indicates peak population in the United States will come in about 50 years, and will be, perhaps, 180,000,000,000 people.

If it weren't for the census, the economic power of America would be as wild as lightning, as haphazard as a bull in a china shop. Oil companies wouldn't know where to put their pipelines and storage stations, because they wouldn't know where the sale of their oil would justify the cost. And gasoline for your car would go up.

Chain stores wouldn't know where to put their super-markets. Independent merchants wouldn't know how much money they needed to go into business to meet chain competition.

Census figures not only measure business growth, they are the basis for continued growth. Trade magazines circulate them, so that business men recognize what's catching on with the public and why.

They Won't Guess.

Now the Census Bureau's slide rule doctors can tell you already many of the things they are going to find out about America in 1940, long before they complete the count. But they won't admit it, because the Census Bureau doesn't guess

For instance, they're going to count about 132,000,000 people this year, nearly 10,000,000 more than they counted in 1920.

About 55,000,000 of these people will make up the big group called "the nation's labor force." Some 35,000,000 out of the fifty-five will be the nation's industrial workers—professionals, salesmen, traders, and service workers, such as hotel employes About 10,000,000 will be found in agriculture.

Three million will be working on Federal and state emergency programs to care for the unemployed. And about seven million will be actively seeking work in the labor market That's the net number of unemployed

Another 35,000,000 of the population will be babies and school children under 14. Twenty-eight million more will be housewives, and the remaining 14 million will be students, vagrants, convicts, the insane, and those who do not choose to work—meaning the retired

But the wizards with the slide rules only shake their heads when you ask them where all these people are, and why.

"That's the great puzzle of the 1940 census," they say. "We don't know the answer We quit trying to estimate the population by states in 1937 because we knew the migration of the population was playing havoc with our slide rule calculations

What does this mean?

It means this generation is witnessing a strange drama of evolution. Can man in America have lost his ties to space, to property, and communities? Maybe. Anyway, any Tom, Dick or Harry can scrape up $50, buy an old auto, and go clean across the country from New York to California.

In 1930 Americans started out, helter skelter, to visit uncle Fred in Iowa, or just to go and find something, somewhere, besides panic and depression.

Strange Things Happen.

Modern communications and business methods did some of these strange things to us. Any citizen can clear a check across the whole continent. Credit can be established anywhere overnight.

Only the census figures can measure the impact of migration, depression and unemployment and our civilization and our democracy.

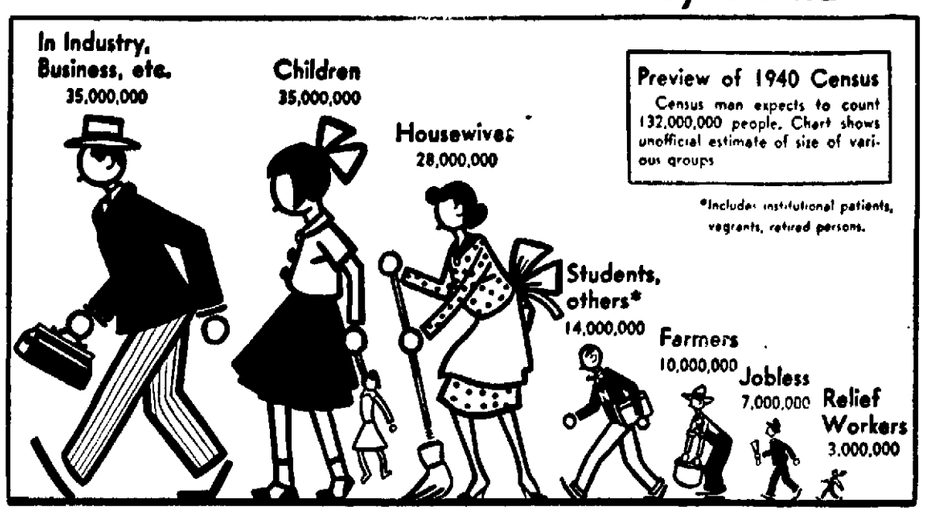

And in a few months you'll begin to get the answers, ground out by mammoth, high speed tabulators, and put together by the wizards with the slide rules.

But first, 130,000 enumerators are going to ring 40,000,000 door bells, between today and April 30, and ask three and a quarter billion questions These will go to 7,000 special census workers in Washington, who will start them rolling through the statistical mill.

Then will come answers, facts, the Battle of the Census—and maybe a few more keys to unlock the secrets of the nation's future.

THE END

party as a "write-in" primary candidate. The Republican state central committee, meeting in Columbus tomorrow, may be called upon to recommend a person for the vacancy, the Associated Press reported.

Most frequently mentioned in speculation on Mr. Griffith's successor were Thomas E. Bateman of Columbus, clerk of the Ohio senate, and George Neffner of New Vienna, veteran statistician in the secretary of state's office.

Attorney General Herbert must decide whether a primary for candidates seeking the short-term nomination for secretary of state—Nov 5 to Jan 1, may be held coincident with the May 14 primary.

Bricker Suggests Shift In Appointment Laws.

COLUMBUS, O. —(INS)— Governor Bricker today suggested that Ohio laws be changed to permit immediate appointment of a successor in the event a state official dies.

Referring to the sudden death Saturday of Secretary of State Earl Griffith, Bricker said duties of that department had suffered because there was no one with power to sign documents. The governor said he expected to name a temporary successor to Griffith tomorrow.

He suggested, however, that legislation be enacted creating a committee that would have the power to name a successor who would take office within a few hours following the death of an official.

'Vendol' Worth Many Times Its Cost Says Local Lady

Began to feel better almost at once and improvement continued daily. No more dizzy feelings or stomach upsets.

MRS. CLIFFORD E. MIKESELL

Thousands of men and women who once suffered without finding the right medicine to relieve them, are now praising Vendol and saying it is the finest thing they ever tried. Hundreds right here in Mansfield, out of gratitude for sufferings relieved, are giving Vendol their highest praise, many in public statements, in their sincere desire to help others in distress. For instance:

Mrs. Clifford E Mikesell of 58 Bushnell street, whose husband is an Enamelist at the Humphryes Manufacturing Company, tells of her happy experience with Vendol as follows:

"Years of suffering from constipation had me where I hardly knew a day free of suffering When the constipation would be worse I'd suffer from acid indigestion, 'heartburn,' a full bloated feeling caused by gas, and I dared not eat too much highly seasoned or greasy foods because they just seemed to feel like lead in my stomach

"Then too, this constipated condition often caused me to awaken many mornings feeling worn out, dizzy, with a headache, bad taste in my mouth, tongue, and unpleasant breath.

"I will always be thankful to the people who gave their experiences in the papers telling how Vendol helped them because this led me to try Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets and I can say they have been worth many times more than they cost.

"Vendol acted splendidly to relieve my constipation and I then noticed my other trouble improved very fast so that seems to prove that constipation was causing all of it. Vendol gave me a good cleaning out, and I began to feel better almost at once, and now I truly feel like another person. I am glad to recommend this grand medicine for it is simply wonderful"

If constipation or need of a diuretic to your kidneys is causing you a lot of trouble, don't put off getting Vendol and see how quickly it will bring relief

You are invited to talk freely with the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, corner Main and 4th streets, without obligation, but give Vendol a chance to help you as it has so many all around here. Get Vendol today from most any druggist.

Dangerous Type Explosive Used In Willow Wick Mine.

WASHINGTON—The bureau of mines said today it had found that a dangerous type of explosive and "non-permissible" machinery were used in the Willow Grove, Ohio, coal mine where 72 men were killed March 16

While deferring a final report on the cause of the explosion, the bureau said:

"The coal is mined mechanically, black pellet powder (a type long condemned by the bureau as dangerous) being used for blasting. Mining machines were described as 'non-permissible' that is, not regarded by the bureau of mines as being of the most safe type."

ported, but scores of stores were closed. Gas supplies were threatened but still in service.

Additional U. S. coast guardsmen were rushed here, bringing the force to 40 men and 12 boats.

In some sections the water threatened to exceed the high marks reached in the disastrous 1936 floods.

The Lackawanna river began to recede along with the Susquehanna and authorities said the worst of the flood fears in the Scranton region had passed.

Families forced to evacuate their homes in the lowlands were told they could return in 24 hours.

One public school in Scranton was ordered closed.

At Sayre the Susquehanna still was rising All roads south of Sayre were closed and traffic to Towanda cut off. The main road to Elmira, N. Y., was under water and impassible.

The Delaware at Easton overflowed its banks, covering some streets with several feet of water. The river was 25 feet above normal but authorities said the waters would begin to recede soon as the ice which had choked the the stream was breaking up.

Industrial plants along the river below Easton were flooded.

Three Greyhound buses were reported marooned with an undetermined number of passengers near Towands.

The Susquehanna there reached its crest—23.93 feet—at 2 a. m., and then began receding. In 1936 the river reached 25.03 feet at the same point.

Two additional deaths in the Susquehanna valley, one from drowning and one from shock, raised the death toll to nine. There was a possibility that two others were lost in a boat accident, during removal of refugees, but this was unconfirmed.

A week-end of rain and warm temperatures caused the melting of snow in the watershed and the resulting floods. Flood fears in the western portion of the state were alleviated when the rain halted there but in the east the Susquehanna, Lehigh, Schuylkill and Delaware rivers all continued a steady, rapid rise.

Classes were suspended in schools throughout the flood district and classrooms were converted into haven for refugees. Streets on the hills surrounding theh mountainous valley towns were lined with automobiles and trucks driven from the inundated area

PORTSMOUTH, O. - (INS) — River points from Steubensville to Cincinnati today apprehensively eyed the Ohio river which rose steadily along a 300-mile front

Swollen by the runoff from rampaging Pennsylvania mountain streams, the river at 7 a. m. reached a flood stage of 36 feet at Martins Ferry. Observers predicted the river would reach a crest of 38 feet there at noon.

At Steubenville, flood warnings brought immediate mobilization to the Jefferson county disaster committee of the Red Cross. Rivermen predicted a crest of from 38 to 40 feet as they aided in plans to evacuate at least 50 families.

As the river, quiet most of the winter, crept upward, it was anticipated that sections of Mingo Junction, Brilliant, Rayland and Rush Run, all in Jefferson county, would be flooded Steel plants made arrangements to guard against high waters

At Cincinnati, a crest somewhat under the 50-foot flood stage was expected Thursday or Friday.

Merchants at Marietta began removing stock from basements in low lying business districts for the second time in two months as a precaution against flood damage. Rising four-tenths of a foot an hour, the river was expected to reach a flood stage crest of 36 feet there

Flood Fears Abate In Northern California.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Flood waters receded in northern California today as Pacific ocean winds ceased driving rain clouds across the coast line and interior valleys.

However, danger of further river rampages existed along areas of weakened levees, soggy from six days of rain last week and left battered by February's disastrous high waters.

More than 100,000 acres in the Sacramento valley were under water. Property damage was estimated in the millions ,and six deaths were attributed to the floods and gales.

subway and platform for westbound passengers. This will not in any way interfere with traffic and weather will not hinder work, Rex said.

Following the completion of the subway and platform, two more months will be needed to remodel and add to the present station.

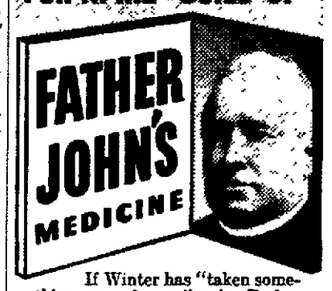

Although piles will not be driven for the subway until Wednesday, digging began immediately following the groundbreaking ceremony by a crew of workmen.

The first job will be to dig the subway which will lead to the new platform and waiting room for westbound train passengers. To do this, a side track will be removed, and a second track for westbound traffic put in.

E. R. Robert is the master carpenter of the project and Clifford Montgomery of this city, is supervisor of the track work.

Other railroad officials present for the ground-breaking were James E. Young, general freight and passenger agent in Mansfield; E. W. High, assistant trainmaster; C G Magruder, of Canton, division freight agent; J. L. Cranwell, division engineer and W. W. Clark, representative district passenger agent of Akron.

Informally Speaking...

Lucy, dear:

YOU can count yourself lucky that some sort of a trick didn't hop out of this letter—and perhaps if I had been a bit more clever I would have thought up something to maybe startle you with, since this is All Fools Day. . . . But then you've probably been fooled already today, so perhaps it's best not to heap too much trickery upon you.

It seems that the prospect of cherry blossoms blooming in Washington, D. C. is beckoning some of the folks from our town to the nation's capital. . . . The J. R. Turner family has driven down for this week in the hope of seeing the flowering trees—Their daughter, Mary Virginia, has gone along, as she's vacationing from Wooster college, and Mrs. Turner's mother, Mrs. Walter Weld of South Bend, Ind., is accompanying them too. . . . Mrs. Herbert H. Schettler left for Washington last night, and she also will be gone for a week.

* * * * *

Speaking of the Schettlers, Dick and Jack were at home from Culver Military academy over the week-end, visiting with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Schettler. . . . Incidentally, Lucy, the Dr. Schettlers returned just last week from a motor trip through the South. . . . They stopped off at the principal cities (Tallahassee, Pensacola, Mobile, Vicksburg and Baton Rouge), where the doctor attended hospital clinics. . . . Oh yes, and they spent Easter with their sons at Culver.

* * * * *

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES A. SULLENS are going to enjoy two springs this year. . . . You see, they have been vacationing in Hot Springs, Ark. for the past two weeks, and it was springtime while they were there—with all the trees and flowers in bloom. . . . They said that the magnolias were especially beautiful just at this season. . . . They traveled by train, and came back through Chicago.

* * * * *

Florida was the scene of a winter vacation for Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Fox—with a trip to Cuba tossed in for special good measure. . . . They motored down and were gone three weeks—their longest stops were in Miami, West Palm Beach and Havana.

ANOTHER Mansfielder, vacationing in Cuba, is Charles Dancer, who went over to Havana from Miami, aboard the Caribbean Clipper. . . . While visiting in New York City, Margaret Cayford is staying at the Barbizon Plaza hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Webster have returned home from Far Rockaway, L. I., where they'd been visiting since Easter.

* * * * *

We have quite a bit of college news today too, Lucy, and as always, our students are leaders in the campus activities at their various schools. . . . Henry J. Paulsen (who will be graduated from Worcester Polytechnic Institute at Worcester, Mass., on June 14) has been named a member of the baccalaureate committee arranging commencement week activities. . . . Henry, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Paulsen, will receive a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering upon his graduation.

THERE'S a Mansfield student on the honor roll down at the University of Dayton. . . . He's Martin Moritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moritz, who gained mention through his work the first semester of this year. . . . A junior in business administration at the institution, Martin (who's an alumnus of St. Peter's high school) is an assistant football manager.

This is spring vacation week at Western Reserve university in Cleveland, so Virginia Mary Rupp is visiting here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rupp. . . . She's a student at Flora Stone Mather, you know.

ALL of which seems to wind up the news for today, Lucy, more will follow again next week—and in the meantime do write.

A couple of weeks ago this column published a letter from a young mother asking if it would be well for her to return to work as soon after a baby's birth as possible.

She had an excellent job which she didn't want to lose. Her idea was to put the baby in the care of a good baby nurse and return to that nice fat pay envelope. Her husband was willing, and she had the feeling that in not resigning her position she would be able to do more for her baby as time went on than if she gave up everything to be a stay-at-home mother.

Several very interesting letters have come in answer to this correspondent's inquiry. Here are a couple of them:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Please tell the young mother who wrote to your column, not to go back to work and leave her little one with someone else. I tried it and was sorry. She missed me so that she wouldn't eat and lost weight. I worried about her and couldn't do my work justice. So I quit and now I'm home and am enjoying all the cute things she does.

"I play with her, have tea parties, take walks and we do lots of things together. She won't be two until next month, and I'm teaching her to dance. If I had kept my job I wouldn't enjoy my daughter as I do when I'm home.

"So please tell this mother to think about her baby and to wait until the little one is three or four years old before going back. Best of luck, from

'ONE WHO TRIED IT."

And here's another point of view about young mothers going back to work soon after the birth of a child. As this correspondent says, it depends on your type and who you have to leave the baby with.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I read with considerable interest the problem of a young mother as to whether she should go back to work after the birth of her child or remain home and care for her baby.

"Please let me say as the mother of two children, it will depend entirely on the type of woman this lady is. If she's overly maternal, she'll probably miss the delightful little ways of a developing child. If she's of the worrying kind, very probably she would be unable to work satisfactorily for her employer if she were away from home. And if the family doesn't need the money she earns, it would be foolish for her to attempt the double role.

"In my own case, I was blessed with a splendid mother-in-law—capable, modern, sensible, devoted. So, when my first child was born I did not wish to give up my position which netted me $2,000 a year. The bank agreed to let me take a month off for my confinement, and at the end of that time with no misgivings, I left my little daughter to the care of my mother-in-law.

"We were very anxious to have a boy baby, and when my daughter was four years old, the stork blessed us with a son. Again the bank gave me a month off, and I am back at work with no worry over the children.

"It's all a personal question whether a young mother can work contentedly away from home when her children are young. In my case my husband's mother was exceptional and I felt I could do more toward giving the children a good education, if I continued with my job than if I stayed home and cared for them personally.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"My felicitation, Madame," I said. "But please don't ask me to believe that you wrote that note to me after I signaled you."

"No, I'm not quite so fast a worker," she said laughing." "But I figured you might be along any minute, so I jotted down the note so it would be ready when you did barge in. And, as I was all ready to beat it when you gave me the signal, it wasn't much of a trick to vanish before you reached the hall. How is Ede behaving?"

"Very creditably," I answered. "I do not think she was impressed by my distinctly lame warning to pay no attention to sounds, but she doesn't appear to fear danger particularly."

"Probably would welcome it in her present morbid state of mind," Lillian said sententiously.

"What's happening?" I asked, dodging the questions of Edith's spiritual reactions.

"They're waiting the arrival of the tear gas," she said. "They have put ladders up to every window of the attic—fortunately, there aren't very many—and when the tear gas comes every window will have a man outside it ready to toss in a gas bomb if necessary."

"I suppose Father won't want to test the speaking tube in my room until the gas comes," I ventured.

"That goes without saying," she returned. "Surprise attack — that's the Chief every time. But we ought not to have to wait much longer for the zero hour."

Her prophecy was correct. It was but a few minutes before Harry Underwood came up the stairs and passed us on his hurried way to my father's room.

"Get ready to go over the top," he said as he went by, and we waited in tense silence until he came back again with his hand under my father's arm.

"Dicky—where is he?" I said.

"Directing the men at the windows." Mr. Underwood said laconically.

Mr. Underwood spoke crisply.

"If you two don't mind, will you come with us to Madge's room where that speaking tube is?" he asked. We rose at once and, at Harry's, gesturing hand led the way down the hall to my room. We placed the chairs for them, but only my father sat down. Harry Underwood stood waiting for whatever activity my father might ask of him.

"This speaking tube," my father began, looking at me, "how do you use it?"

"Ordinarily," I said, "I simply press a button which sounds a little buzzer in the attic or the kitchen. Then whoever is up there comes to the tube and we talk."

"Of course, that wouldn't do now," my father said musingly. "Nobody up there is going to betray his presence by answering a signal. But tell me, if you speak loudly into the mouthpiece of that speaker, can it be heard in the attic?"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, April 2.

Auspicious planetary influences prevail on this day, according to the most influential aspects. There is promise of advancement, preferment, fulfilled ambitions, together with personal prestige and popularity. Things are quite likely to move at a rapid pace, with probably excitement and, in some connection, rather drastic and sudden action. In the domestic, social and group activities, as well as in the affectional life, a lively and gratifying tempo may be assured.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of extremely lively and swift-moving activities in both business and personal affiliations. In the former promotion, preferment, important objectives and the friendly co-operation of those in power and probably public authority may be expected.

A child born on this day, while probably somewhat temperamental or erratic, may be talented, artistic, ambitious, gracious and genial. It may win tokens of esteem and solid support from superiors.

Arizona growers shipped 35,000,000 cantaloupes to the nation's markets last summer.

Fill That Cookie Jar

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

New cookie recipes will help fill up that ever-yawning jar.

Sugar Cookies are made with two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon salt, two eggs, one-half cup shortening, one cup sugar, teaspoon lemon juice and teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour, measure, add salt and baking powder, and sift all together. Add beaten eggs, lemon juice and vanilla, then add dry ingredients. Chill. Roll dough to one-fourth-inch thickness. Cut in shapes with 10 minutes in 400 degree F. oven.

Cranberry Variety.

Cranberry Cookies are made with one cup cranberry sauce (juice drained), one-half cup shortening, one-half cup sugar, one egg, two cups flour, teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Cream sugar and shortening and add well-beaten egg. flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt. When well blended add and blend in vanilla. Chill dough. Roll out very thin on slightly floured board and cut with round cookie cutter. Place one teaspoon cranberry sauce on top of round, place another over it and press edges firmly together with fork tines. Bake in 375 degrees oven for 10 to 15 minutes.

Every woman seems to have a favorite recipe for gingerbread cookies and so we might as well advance our pet formula. We use three and one-fourth cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-third teaspoon salt, one teaspoon ginger, two-thirds cup molasses, four tablespoons glycerine, one-third cup of brown sugar, one egg, one third cup melted shortening. Sift flour, measure and sift with baking powder, salt and ginger. Mix molasses, glycerine, sugar, egg and shortening together. Combine with dry ingredients, forming a soft dough. Shape in forms of little men and women, animals or just plain cookies. Bake on greased casserole sheet 10 to 15 minutes in 375 degrees F. oven.

Give these cookies your own name, but whatever you call 'em, you'll pronounce them good. Recipe for about 100 very small, crisp cookies is for one and two-thirds cups flour, one-third teaspoon cinnamon, one-third teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one-third cup light brown sugar, one-third cup white sugar, one-fourth cup melted lard, one-half cup melted butter, one egg, one-third teaspoon lemon extract, one drop maple flavoring and one-third cup chopped nuts. Sift flour, cinnamon, soda and salt. Mix sugar, shortening and egg. Beat well. Add the remaining ingredients. Knead on a board a few seconds and then make into a roll and chill in the refrigerator until firm. Slice very thin and bake at 400 degrees F. until golden brown.

Be Courteous To Youthful Callers

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS Ph. D.

WE PARENTS are sometimes jittery because we fear our child will say or do something before our adult friends which will embarrass us. And this is one reason why so many children can't be comfortable when there is "company."

Yet, few of us ever realize how much anxiety our children have about the way we might act in the presence of their playmates and young friends. We little know how much our children are embarrassed by our failure to measure up socially to what they expect of us.

Here I must confess that each of our children, even before the age of 12, had the experience of asking me to keep from certain acts or remarks toward their playmates which I was about to engage in, or of requesting me to avoid repeating such. At this earlier age, or later, they gave me some good advice on proper manners toward their pals. Their mother seldom needed it.

Happily, however, I recall several occasions when one of the children told me I had greatly improved. A little praise like that from a child goes a long way to help one go on improving. I must say to their credit that they chose opportune moments for "correction" and, to my credit, that I was able not to show annoyance, but actually able to express repentence when I was so censured or exhorted.

When It's "Boy Friend."

It's when the "boy friend" comes to the home that a parent's failure to measure up to high standards of decorum is most serious. Whether we approve or disapprove of the young man, he and our daughter deserve that we be courteous. It's curious how very rude some parents, especially fathers, will be toward the boy friend of their daughter when they dislike him. Even if we wish to "break up the match," we generally will defeat our purpose by such procedure. Anyway, you and I can't afford to be boorish toward anybody.

We should remember that it's our daughter the young man is interested in, not her parents. Some mothers and fathers, overeager to encourage the young man, become a bore to him, wearing him out with their chatter and inordinate attention.

There's a real art in being a good host or hostess to your daughter's masculine friends. Wise parents will do well to cultivate this art; and if they are good comrades with their daughter, she will gladly aid them in this direction.

Tips for Daughter.

A few tips to the daughter: Be sure to have your friend come into the house. Present him to your parents. If you think your parents lack proper manners toward him, choose a quiet moment when you feel best toward them, then tenderly entreat them to do so and so henceforth.

Also some tips to the young man: Learn good manners. Exercise them toward the parents and their daughter. Good manners will go a long way to win all of them. Find out the hour when the daughter's parents expect her to be home, then live up to the standard.

I have prepared a selected list of books on manners for parents and children, to be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. My nine-year-old girl talks back to me.

A. Quit talking back to her. It may be well to state your reasons briefly before stating your decision or command, but once it is announced or made, say no more. If it is a command to be obeyed and is not obeyed within a reasonable time, calmly announce the penalty and make your word good.

KEEPING COOKIES MOIST

Cookies that stand too long in the open will become crumbly. As soon as cookies have cooled, store then in a covered jar. The old-fashioned stone jar with heavy cover is one of the best of cooky containers.

FLOOR TREATMENT

Varnished floors need careful treatment. To remove spots, wipe off with a cloth dipped in lukewarm, sudsy water. Wipe dry immediately with a soft cloth and rub with a floor polish.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

FORESEEING THE PLAY

"What would you lead from this hand against 4-Hearts?" is a form of question which most players are asked from time to time. The canny campaigner will always answer with another query: "How was it bid?" Until he knows that, he has no idea of what would be the best lead. Sometimes the bidding gives a very thorough picture of the hands held by the declarer and dummy, and therefore indicates the probable line of play, as well as the type of defense that may wreck the contract.

♠ K 8 6
♥ A 7 5
♦ Q 8 5 2
♣ Q 6 4

What would you lead in the West, holding this hand, if the bidding had been as under the four sequences below?

1. South	1 ♠	2 ♥	4 ♥
North	2 ♣	3 ♥
2. South	1 ♥	2 ♥	4 ♥
North	1 ♠	3 ♥
3. South	1 ♥	2 ♥	3 ♥
North	2 ♣	2 ♠	4 ♥
4. South	1 ♥	2 ♣	3 ♥
North	1 N.T.	2 ♥	4 ♥

In the first case, it should be clear that the declarer has a cross-ruffing situation. He can trump diamonds in the dummy and clubs in his own hand. Break it up, by leading a trump—in this case the ace and then another, which probably will cut him to two trumps only left in each hand for ruffing purposes.

In the second situation, the declarer probably will make out best by dropping trumps first, then running the spades and discarding on them one or more of his minor suit losers. You lead one of the minor suits for two reasons—to pick off whatever losers are there and to try to knock out the side entry for the spade suit, if there is one.

In the third line-up, the declarer again probably will drop trumps first then go after the clubs. If the dummy has a side entry for them, it is in spades; try to knock out that spade entry.

The fourth situation shows a declarer who probably will try to bring in his own club suit, first ruffing losers in it. Take out the dummy's trumps, with the ace and another.

Treatment For Oily Skins

By MME. QUI VIVE

As long as feminine noses continue to shine like a good deed in a naughty world, the cosmetic industry will march ahead on its own feet. Millions of lamb's wool pads, boxes of complexion powders, bottles of astringents are sacrificed in the cause of the dull finish. But shining noses are stubbornly resistent to efforts made to dim them. They put up a gallant fight as if they wanted, above everything else, to welter in their own oily exudations.

The cause: sebaceous glands that don't know that enough is enough. The reason for this overactivity may be in a diet that is too rich in fats. Many beauty specialists have come to that conclusion.

Few of us get enough fruits and vegetables and it is well worth while having a try out. We suggest orange or tomato juice for breakfast, a green salad once a day, an occasional glass of buttermilk, plenty of spinach, onions, tomatoes, asparagus, chard, all vegetables of that class rather than those that grow under the ground.

The girls who bawls about an oily skin must remember that the exudations must be cleared away and the powder pad doesn't do it. Powder and sebaceous oil combine, forming a sort of paste against which the pores rebel. A light powder is all right, but the skin should be scrupulously clean when it is applied. And the powder pad must be used lightly. Grinding powder in to the flesh is a major beauty crime.

An occasional dry cleaning with eau de cologne affords relief. Have a moist cloth, pour on it a teaspoonful or even less of eau de cologne, go over the skin surface lightly. Keep the cloth away from the eyes; the alcoholic content of the perfume may cause discomfort. Begin under the chin, work upward. Don't overlook the little creases at the wings of the nose where blackheads congregate.

It is not wise to do your dry cleaning directly after soap has been used. And that brings us to another matter that is important. Many skins that appear oily are not relly; they are just carrying a film of soap that has not been thoroughly rinsed away. After the suds is used, it should be removed with fairly hot water; cold water won't budge it. After the warm rinsing, use cold water freely.

The dry cleaning recommended for the removal of oil is often successful in treatment of blackheads. It dissolves the atmospheric dust that has been picked up by the waxlike contents of the pores. It accelerates the blood streams, giving the skin a glowing color.

Baked Oysters Creole.

1½ cups crumbs
⅛ cup butter, melted
1 pint large oysters
4 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
4 slices bacon

Mix crumbs with butter. Half fill six buttered baking dishes or fish shells. Top with the oysters. Mix the catsup, juice, salt and paprika. Spread over the oysters and add bacon cut into squares. Bake or broil 10 minutes. Serve in the dishes in which cooked.

PARTY NAME PLATES

Youngsters enjoy festive parties. For your next one that you give try pinning large name cards on the backs of the chairs at table, writing the names with colored crayons. It helps the effect if you also tie on a favor.

BAKED FISH MAYONNAISE

To give a little extra zip to baked fish, spread savory mayonnaise over the top during the last 10 minutes of the cooking. This applies to fish cooked on top the stove or in the oven.

CHAPTER IV

Mrs. Reardon waited for Eric to say something in her defense but he was completely mute, only a brick-red flush betraying his agitation. She compressed her lips into a thin line and stood up to face them both. Her voice was flat, uncompromising

"I gave Elaine a chance to prove that my opinion of her was a wrong one," she reminded Eric, completely ignoring the fuming Aunt Ella. "Even today I had arranged to give you a large check to prove that while I personally did not like her I was willing to accept her into the family. As you can readily see now, she isn't the sort of girl any self-respecting person would consider taking into the family. I don't want to see or hear of her again, Eric And I sincerely hope that this affair will prove a lesson to you"

Turning her back upon the two, she walked with mincing steps up the path towards the house.

"Mother, I'm going to marry Elaine," Eric said, placing a gentle hand upon her shoulder. "This accident doesn't prove a thing Personally, I think the liquor on her was from the smashed bottle But no matter what actually did occur, I still love her"

Mrs. Reardon brushed his arm away. There was little in her manner to indicate the alarm his defiant words stirred in her. "I refuse to discuss the matter further, Eric. If you wish to marry Elaine against my wishes you may do so but, of course, if you disobey me I will disinherit you"

Her threat came as a complete surprise to Eric who had never suspected the true nature of her feelings toward Elaine Stunned speechless, he watched her walk up the flagstone path and into the house.

"Eric," Aunt Ella placed her hand anxiously upon his shoulder. "You—you aren't going to let Elaine down—just when she needs you, most, are you?"

He drew back a little, his brow drawn into deep lines "You heard what mother said, didn't you?" he queried, evading a direct answer.

Aunt Ella's face was grim "But surely you won't let that stop you from marrying Elaine?" she persisted.

His face was taut and pale as he walked away from her. Disinherited. How could he and Elaine live without his mother's money? What would they do? Where would they go? His eyes were agonized as he looked at Aunt Ella and when he spoke his voice was filled with emotion and fear

"I don't know, Aunt Ella. I've got to think. You—you must let me think."

It had been such a wonderful dream, all about a gay little party she and Eric were giving for their closest and most interesting friends, with Clara and Betty on hand and on their very best behavior, each contributing as only they could to the general fun-making Elaine heartily enjoyed such pleasant dreams and it annoyed her to be dragged so unceremoniously away from one to the sterner reality of pain and a hospital bedroom. She scowled up at the young interne who was standing beside the bed shaking her awake.

"Is the place on fire?" she asked sleepily, "or are you just amusing yourself?"

"You're the laziest person I've ever known, Miss Warburton," the young doctor informed her, unperturbed by her scowl. "You must be getting in training to outsleep Rip Van Winkle."

Elaine raised a hand to cover a very impolite yawn. "I do as the Romans do, Dr. Stuart. When I'm at a party I dance; when I'm in bed I sleep."

Her remark brought a grin to his usually sober face. "You can overdo most anything. But I really didn't wake you up just for the fun of it. You've pestered me so often about your friend's condition that I thought you would be interested to hear that she's regained consciousness As a matter of fact, she's completely out of danger"

"Well, that is worth waking up for," Elaine cried with a happy smile Elated by the news, she so completely forgot her own injury that she sat up in the bed. But she had hardly managed to achieve a sitting position before a fiery pain slashed across her back tearing a gasp from her throat. She sank back to the pillow grimly gritting her teeth. Glancing sheepishly at the doctor, she was annoyed to see that he was amused rather than sympathetic.

"You'll know better next time," he told her with a little laugh "But I think I've bothered you enough for one afternoon. You must be anxious to get back to sleep."

Elaine didn't know the reason why, but suddenly she became aware that she did not want him to leave. Not taking the time to realize that an interne might have more important things to do in a hospital than stand around talking with her she reached out and plucked at his coat before he could take a step

"No, don't go," she pleaded in a small voice. It gets rather lonely in here. That's why I sleep so much."

"A beautiful girl like you lonely?" he scoffed, turning around. But there was a look of understanding in his fine brown eyes as he brought a chair from across the room and sat down beside the bed. "Why, you must have a host of friends."

Elaine shook her dark head sadly on the pillow. "I'm not beautiful, as you very well known, and as for friends, well, no one has even come to visit me."

He laid a comforting hand on hers. "What you're really trying to say is that HE hasn't come to visit you. But you shouldn't let that bother you. The truth of the matter is that your aunt and two friends have been calling at the hospital all week. We didn't think it would be wise to let you have visitors so soon. After all, you did have quite a shock, and we felt that rest was the best thing for you."

His words sent new hope winging through Elaine's body. She clutched his hand excitedly. "Was—was one of them a man?"

"A very good-looking chap, so the nurses told me. And he was very determined to see you. So much so that when we refused to let him in he accused us of being a bunch of quacks."

His description of Eric amazed her and Elaine stared with disbelieving eyes at the good-looking doctor. Well-mannered, meek Eric accusing them of being quacks? "But he didn't," she contradicted flatly. 'Eric would never say such a thing."

"I'm only repeating what the nurse at the desk told me," Dr. Stuart said tersely. He glanced at his watch, sighed, and rose from the chair. "Well, duty calls. But I wouldn't worry about the lack of visitors. We're going to permit them to come up today. And I'm willing to wager you'll wish they'd never come"

Before Elaine could think of an answer to his parting remark the door closed behind his stocky, whiteclad figure and she was again alone in her room. She was alone to go back to sleep if she so chose, but now, suddenly, the room didn't seem quite so small, quite so cheerless, and nothing was further from her mind than returning to her dreams.

Betty was going to live! Eric was coming to visit her! Elaine was almost tempted to pinch herself to make sure that she wasn't still dreaming. Rarely had she received so much good news at the same time She had been a fool, she decided exultantly, able to laugh now at the thoughts which had depressed her for almost a week. She should have guessed that a girl of Betty's type would live to be a hundred, accidents and illnesses notwithstanding. And as for Eric—a blush of shame stained her cheeks—she had been too hasty in her judgment of him; she should have known that he would not fail her just when she needed him most.

She wondered what time he would arrive and glanced excitedly at the baguette wrist watch Aunt Ella had given her for a birthday present. Strangely, it was still keeping perfect time despite the crash. The hands indicated two-thirty. Recalling suddenly that her nurse had once mentioned that the visitor's hour began at three, she pushed herself over to the side of the bed in order to more easily reach into the white-enameled cabinet. She drew out her mirror—she must look her best for Eric.

One glance at her reflection in the glass brought a cry of dismay from her lips. Why, she was positively hideous! Thankful that she had possessed the foresight to check upon her appearance, she reached hastily into the cabinet for her compact and then groaned as she recalled she had none with her. Her searching fingers did find a comb, however, and she drew this out and began tugging it through the tangles of her wavy brunette hair.

It was difficult to perform this job satisfactorily in a lying-down position but she did the best she could and was pleased to learn after another examination in the mirror that this seemingly inadequate attention had considerably enhanced her looks. Her cheeks were red with a healthy flush, and though she could use a little lipstick and powder, she placed the comb and mirror back in the cabinet, deciding that there was nothing more she could do. Surely Eric would make some allowance for the difficulties under which she had labored.

Another glance at her watch informed her that only five minutes had been consumed in this tidying-up. But that was impossible. Her watch must have stopped. She raised it to her ear and was disappointed to hear the swift, staccato tick which denoted a perfectly adjusted mechanism. She heaved an impatient sigh, but then, realizing that impatience would accomplish nothing, she made a determined effort to quiet herself She was being a fool again. After all, only twenty-five minutes more. Just then a noise at the door brought her head swiftly around and as it opened to reveal Aunt Ella a happy smile came to her lips.

"Remember, only fifteen minutes," the trim young nurse warned. "And you must not excite Miss Warburton."

"Young lady," Aunt Ella declared dryly, "if an automobile accident couldn't kill my niece I'm sure she'll live through my visit."

The nurse opened her mouth to speak but apparently deciding otherwise she walked out of the room and closed the door.

"Elaine!" Aunt Ella rushed across the room and placing loving arms around her shoulders. Half crying, half laughing, she pressed her dark head close to her motherly bosom. "I—I was so worried about you. I would have seen you sooner only they wouldn't let me in. Are you all right?"

"I feel fine," Elaine told her, hugging her happily. "My back was hurt but I'll be out of bed in another week or so." She looked reproachfully at the tears which streamed down her aunt's plump cheeks. 'But you mustn't cry, Aunt Ella. Honestly, I'm getting along swell."

"Stop using slang," Aunt Ella commanded, briskly. But she did release Elaine and sat down in the chair beside the bed, dabbing her eyes with a handkerchief. "Now tell me exactly what happened? I read about it in the papers, of course, but I want to know all about it"

Apprehension crawled in cold waves along her spine as Elaine caught this reference to the newspapers. It meant that Eric's mother had heard about the accident, and—and what would her reaction be? The question was mirrored in her eyes as she looked at Aunt Ella, but seeing her fidget impatiently on the chair, she launched into an explanation of the whole affair As she stumbled self-consciously through the story her aunt's face became grave, and Elaine felt her happiness of a few minutes ago fade way. Her cheeks were burning as she finished her story.

"I know how you feel," she said sorrowfully. "You spent almost every cent you had to send me to the school. You were anxious to have me graduate from a fashionable college and—and I let you down."

"I sent you to school because of your voice." Aunt Ella contradicted, managing to hide whatever disappointment she felt. "In this world it isn't only what you know, but whom you know that counts. I thought if you could meet people who amounted to something they might be able to help you if you decided to sing professionally. And as for graduating, well, you did. The school authorities decided that you girls had been punished enough. I have your diploma back at the hotel. I was worried about something else, Elaine."

Elaine felt her heart pound madly within her. She looked fearfully at her aunt. "Is—is it about Eric?"

For a seemingly interminable moment Aunt Ella offered no reply and Elaine felt that the suspense would kill her. Just when she had reached the limit of her endurance Aunt Ella slowly nodded her head.

"Mrs. Reardon became quite angry when she read about the accident. She told Eric that if he married you she would disown him. He—he decided to obey her."

It wasn't true! It couldn't be true! She was just in the middle of some horrible nightmare. Eric would never let her down. He had held her tight in his arms and sworn he would love her always. He wouldn't fail her just because of an accident. Aunt Ella was just teasing her. Soon she would smile and admit she was just joking. But even as the tears welled in her eyes Elaine knew that Aunt Ella had told her the truth. Eric had been forced to choose between herself and his mother. And he had chosen his mother!

ACQUIRES TITLE TO PLAYSPOTS

School Board Moves Step Nearer to Creation of Two New Playgrounds.

The Mansfield board of education today had acquired title to 23 lots and 10 half-lots in Mansfield and Madison township for playgrounds at Senior high school and John Simpson junior high school.

The properties were purchased several weeks ago for approximately $20,000, but the actual transfers were not made until after the titles were checked and cleared.

Sixteen of the full lots are at the rear of Senior high school. Five of them were purchased from Edward S. Flaherty, three from Melville M Endly, and one each from Catherine Fry, Theresa Flowers, L Max Daugherty and others, Hazel F. Koppes, T. Amos Jones, Oscar Chronister and others, Frank M. Yarger, and Fred S. Long.

Seven lots and 10 half-lots east of the new John Simpson building were acquired from Albert E. Hancock and others. All of the properties are vacant.

Football practice fields, tennis courts, softball diamonds, and playgrounds for girls will be established on the sites

The school board issued bonds within the 10-mill limitation to pay for the properties.

Planning a Garden?

Detailed Ground Plan Necessary Before You Plant Anything

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
(AP Feature Service Writer)

MORE than half of the hard work connected with a garden is in planning it.

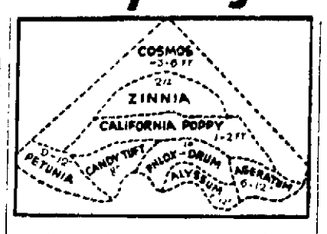

Many people, especially city dwellers, haven't much choice about the size, location or quality of the land they will use. But, fortunately, almost any soil can be made suitable for gardening by the addition of organic matter and plant food.

FIRST IN A SERIES

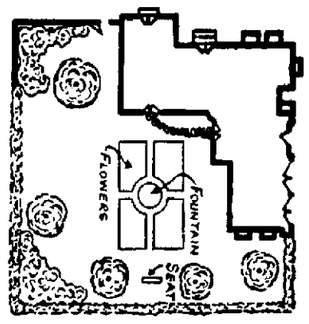

After selecting your site, make a scale drawing of it. Then hold a family conference and decide on what to plant—vegetables, flowers or both.

Americans are getting more and more to be outdoor enthusiasts and the "outdoor living room" is becoming a part of many new homes.

This innovation doesn't require a lot of space, but it does call for careful planning. If you have one it should contain some of those features: A pool, a shady nook, a rock garden, a bird bath or sundial, an oven for barbecues or picnics and a mass of well planned flowers and shrubs for background.

Guide for mass flower planting with short-stem flowers in front, taller ones in rear.

Suggested plan for one of the "outdoor living rooms" of which Americans are becoming fonder.

In general, remember that beds of flowers allow depth, massing of color and color-contrasts. Borders are for hillsides, terraces, rock walls, fences, paths and around foundations of buildings. Color harmony is desirable. Flowers are grown to be seen and so the small ones should be in front, mediums in the middle and tall ones in back.

Whatever your plans, be sure every detail is worked out on paper before digging a spade into the soil.

Tomorrow: Planning a vegetable plot.

LOANS

YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, friendly service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

One rate to everyone

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair Treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount required by using this table to be the full amount you will pay when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300 and 1½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.

Experts Revise Early Guesses On Cleveland

Some Decide Indians Might Give Boston Red Sox a Fight for Second Place.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(By Associated Press)

Whether there is any connection, the experts who have been revising their early guesses on the probable place at the finish of the Cleveland Indians, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants are getting a lot of support from grapefruit league performances.

The Indians, for instance, won all five of their games last week at about the time some folk were deciding they might give the Boston Red Sox a whale of a fight for second place in the American league this season. Cleveland has won 12 and lost four tilts in all competition this spring.

For awhile, everybody was so off-balance about Bob Feller that they figured he was good and the rest of the Tribe wasn't. Now the Indians are showing they also have other pitchers, good catching, a fine infield, a fair outfield and ample reserve strength.

The Giants are another case in point. They finished fifth last year and came up with so many question marks this spring no one could fathom their fate. But in the last week they won five out of six games against such opposition as the New York Yankees, Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cards, Brooklyn Dodgers and Washington Senators.

Billy Terry, a smart manager capable of getting the most out of the material at hand, has his pitchers right at the peak. Burgess Whitehead is showing his former brilliance and is likely to solve the club's urgent third base problem, if illness does not recur.

Similarly, the Pirates took four out of five from the Philadelphia Athletics on tour last week and there are signs that the buccaneers may be both bold and bad medicine, if Frank Frisch can line up any kind of pitching.

* * *

The St. Louis Browns, playing the best and only minor league opponents available in Texas, continued to pace the grapefruit grind over the whole three-week route, with a record of nine victories and two defeats.

Mansfield Dog Wins Event

Ohio Prince, Owned by Moore and Metz, Takes 1st.

GALION — Approximately 650 persons who witnessed the running of 128 dogs in the first spring coon field trial at the Bucyrus fair grounds, Sunday, which was sponsored by the Crawford County Coon Hunters association. R. W. Stall of Galion, president of the organization, said this was one of the most successful and best attended trials ever held by the association.

Sixteen heats were run with eight dogs participating in each heat, and first and second prizes awarded in each of the contests.

Ohio Prince, a dog owned by Moore and Metz of Mansfield, won the first tree, while Black Rowdy, a dog belonging to W. E. Voegel of Newark won the second tree.

First line was won by Cherry Bob whose owner is Earl Tanner of McCutchenville; and the second line was won by Red Sail, a dog owned by B. F. Cowell of Perrysville.

Get Ready For Newark Meet

Streaks Return, Prepare for Saturday's Contest.

Coach Harry Mehock's Red Streaks returned to the cinder paths today to begin training for their meet with the Newark track team at 2 p. m. Saturday at Stadium field.

Strong Vincent of Erie, Pa., won the Tri-state interscholastic meet for the third straight year by out-pointing teams from Ohio and Pennsylvania. West Virginia, the third state to be represented, did not enter the competition this year.

* * *

Fred Atwater, Mansfield high's star hurdler, captured the Red Streaks' only score when he romped home with a fourth in the 50-yard high hurdles.

Heffner Hopes To Beat 'Hun' Here Tonight

The mat battle between Jimmy Heffner, from Sherman, Texas and the masked unknown, "The Hun" headlines the Armory show tonight.

Burning with one desire, to defeat and unmask the mysterious unknown, Heffner is set to throw all his array of mat resources into this battle.

Frank Grashel, Cleveland, O., wrestling official will be here to referee this important contest. The Midwest Wrestling association assigned Grashel to handle this match and he was chosen primarily because of the fact that he has never officiated a match in which either contestant has taken part.

It'll be a two out of three falls battle with an hour and a half time limit. A match between "Buzz" Jones, Coloradoan and Al Szasz, blond Hungarian star, is the semi-final attraction. The winner of this match will be offered terms to meet Stacy Hall, world's light-heavyweight champion in a title match here in the near future. The opening event at 8:30 sends Bob Steele, local boy against Gus Johnson, Minneapolis light-heavyweight.

Referee's Error Costs Boxer Title

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — A referee's error deprived Sheldon Bell, Wilberforce university boxer, of the Ohio A. A. U. light heavyweight championship today, and transferred Wilberforce's announced team championship to the Dayton Cooperative club.

A. A. U. officials said the referee misunderstood figures on judges slips and that the decision should have been given to Houston Johnson of Portsmouth, instead of Bell. As a result, officials declared the light heavyweight berth open on the team which will represent Ohio in national finals at Boston April 8-10.

Hogan, who trailed Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., by almost $3,000 in money winnings less than a month ago, turned in his third consecutive victory yesterday as he came from behind to win the $5,000 Land-of-the-Sky tournament.

* * *

Hogan turned in a 72-hole total of 273 which put him 11 under par and three strokes ahead of Ralph Guldahl, whom he passed in the home stretch. Guldahl, leader for three rounds, went into the final three holes needing birdies to win but failed.

New Ones Appear In High List

Taylor Collects 730 to Gain First Place in Singles Event.

DETROIT—(AP)—New names in three divisions adorned the high stands board at the American Bowling congress tournament today as a result of the heaviest on the pins since the tourney got under way.

Top performance in the Sunday rolling was that of Jack Taylor, 31-year-old printer of Upper Darby, Pa., who equalled last year's winning singles total with a brilliant 730 series.

Vincent Lamb and Eddie Gramlich, 24-year-old machinist from Peoria, Ill., rolled up 1303 to usurp the doubles lead. Tom Willis and Clyde Martinson of Philadelphia took third with 1290, while Gene Adams and John Holden of East St. Louis tallied 1270 for fourth.

Schamberger Schlitz of Chicago piled up 2967 to take the five-man event lead. Their effort dropped the Rosatto Barrys, of Upper Darby, Pa., into second spot after a 24-hour stay in first.

Braving the tradition that A. B. C. champions seldom repeat, three of the 1939 title-holders will seek to regain their crowns in tonight's program. They are Philip Icuss and Murray Fowler of Steubenville, Ohio, who won the doubles last year at Cleveland with 1405, and Jim Danek of Forest Park, Ill., who topped the singles with 730.

Indians Face Giants Today

Eisenstat and Melton to Tangle on Mound.

THOMASVILLE — (UP) — The Cleveland Indians kissed goodbye today to minor league competition and resume major league play against the New York Giants.

* * *

Most of the Indians' success of 11 victories in 15 starts came against minor league outfits but the play will be tough from now on.

* * *

Cliff Melton was slated to pitch for the Giants in the series opener today with Harry Eisenstat due to work five innings for the Tribe.

Bob Feller and Al Smith blanked Atlanta, 2 to 0, with four hits yesterday. The Tribe wasn't so dangerous itself at the plate, collecting only five safeties and receiving one run as a gift.

Feller pitched six innings, longer than any other Indian hurler to date this spring, and yielded three hits while fanning six batters.

* * *

Lou Boudreau, injured Cleveland shortstop, worked out at Fort Myers, Fla., yesterday and later said his ankle felt "swell." He will rejoin the squad tomorrow at Jacksonville, Fla. Manager Oscar Vitt said Boudreau will go back into the lineup as soon as Vitt thinks he is ready.

Defeats Finland Runner

Rice of Notre Dame Sets New Three-Mile Record In Win.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK — (UP) — They'll be singing "Cheer, cheer for old Notre Dame" under the spires at South Bend today, for one of their boys made history in the greatest indoor track meet ever held.

Five world records fell last night in the star-studded competition at Madison Square Garden, but the name that was on everybody's lips as the audience swarmed into the streets was that of Gregory Rice, Notre Dame's chunky, wiry distance man who ran the great Taisto Maki of Finland into the ground in a three-mile race that brought 14,000 persons out of their seats, yelling.

Rice had to break a world record to do it, but two and a half laps from home the South Bend simoon took command with an incredible burst of speed and won going away in the mercury-footed time of 13 minutes and 52.3 seconds. Thus he clipped 3.6 seconds off the world record of 13:55.9 which he set recently at the National A. A. U. games.

Shortly after 10 p. m. four men trotted up to the starting line for the three mile race, and this is what the customers had come to see. In one lane was Maki, grim and serious. Rice, one year out of Notre Dame and now running for the South Bend Athletic association, was in another lane and the other two were Don Lash of Indiana and Joe McCluskey of New York. You could search the world and not find four better men at three miles.

With seven laps to go Lash got into the lead for a moment only to have Maki nail him. Rice stayed steadily on the pace and with only three laps to go it was Maki, Rice and Lash with McCluskey hopelessly out of it.

Then the South Bend Simoon roared. Rice's chunky legs pounded the boards as though he had just come out for a 100-yard dash. He went to Maki's shoulder and then opened daylight in front of him. Nurmi yelled and Maki gave it one more try. For a moment the gap between Rice and Maki shortened, but the South Bend Simoon had just begun to run.

ADVANCES ARE SHOWN AMONG STOCK LEADERS

Steels, Motors Receive Support; European Securities Display Quiet Strength.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances were tacked on to leading stocks in today's market.

Receiving support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Lockheed, Western Union, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber and Montgomery Ward.

Bonds were selectively higher and commodities slightly mixed. European securities markets displayed quiet strength and in New York the "free" British pound sterling rate moved up in terms of the dollar.

Boardrooms scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that orders for commoner hard metal products had tended to improve recently but the gain had not been significant and had failed to overtake the reduction in mill backlogs.

Heavy export demand for steel was seen as a bright feature for this industry.

A compilation indicated the volume of trading on the New York Stock Exchange in March was smaller than in any corresponding month since 1935.

BRITAIN SET TO TIGHTEN UP ON SEA BLOCKADE

Chamberlain to Disclose New, Drastic Steps to Strangle Nazi Ore Shipments.

on Finland the allies would give Finland aid promptly and generously—presumably without Scandinavian permission if necessary.

Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, was expected to outline to British southeastern European diplomats due here soon for conferences and new instructions, allied plans for a more "realistic" attitude toward neutrals as regards the blockade.

Diplomatic moves calculated to reduce even Germany's overland imports from continental Europe are to be discussed, it was reported.

The feeling was held here that the great part of Germany's trade with its neighbors was conducted only because these neighbors feared an attack by Germany, not because they had any desire to support it. Therefore, it was forecast, Britain might move now to try to inspire greater confidence in the small neutrals and to convince them that their best interests would be served, in the end, by assisting the allies or at any rate refraining from aiding Germany.

It was understood that the allies decided at Thursday's allied supreme war council meeting here that they must move as soon as possible to block Germany's iron ore export from Narvik.

Nazis Charge America Violating Neutrality.

BERLIN—(INS)—Threatening to let the American congress decide for itself the authenticity of its white paper accusing the United States of fostering Europe's war, Germany today charged that the American government has been violating its own neutrality laws.

Diplomatic correspondence, organ of the German foreign office, carried the dispute between Berlin and Washington to a step further by commenting:

"The surprising and even monstrous fact must be noted that representatives of a power, in principle strongly opposed to interference with other continents since the days of Washington and Monroe, is now engaged in aggravating the conflict's danger to third powers.

"These amateur diplomatics are even more inconceivable because they are diametrically opposed to the (American) neutrality laws."

It was understood the German government is considering dispatching the original documents that formed the basis of the white paper to the German embassy in Washington which would submit them to congress for scrutiny.

Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels newspaper said:

"If necessary, it should not be difficult to let the American delegates look at the originals in case photographic copies bearing the signatures of Bullitt (William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to Paris) and others cannot overcome their absent-mindedness."

Report Reds, Nazis Join In U.S. Propaganda Drive.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The U. S. government has indisputable evidence of Russo-German cooperation in a propaganda campaign to discredit President Roosevelt at home and abroad in his conduct of international affairs, an authoritative senate source revealed today.

This member asserted that publication of the Berlin white book last week picturing Mr. Roosevelt as accessory to war guilt, was only one in a series of attacks planned in an effort to weaken the chief executive's influence. The president's own comment, it was recalled, was that America must take all foreign propaganda with two grains of salt.

(Editor's note: Berlin dispatches Saturday, based on official sources, forecast issuance of a new white book containing even more sensational charges against the president.)

The evidence in the hands of this government credits the Germans and Russians with two plans:

1. Increasing recurrent attacks through official channels in Moscow and Berlin purporting to prove that the Roosevelt administration plans to lead the United States into the war on the side of the allies.

2. Anti-Roosevelt propaganda campaigns from within the United States — but Berlin-Moscow inspired nevertheless — through the Communist party, the German-American Bund, and organizations sympathetic to their aims.

RELEASE NEARS

Seven of 10 Under Quarantine In Jail Due to Go Free.

Seven of the 10 prisoners in the city jail placed under quarantine last week by the health department following the discovery of a case of scarlet fever among them were eligible for release today, but none was freed. The seven have served out their sentences, while the other three have more time to serve.

Dr. Roy C. Rheder, city-county health commissioner, said however, that they may be released tomorrow, providing none of the 10 shows any sign of the disease by that time. He said that all were given a test for immunity yesterday.

The prisoners, all quartered in the "bull pen," were put under quarantine last Friday night after Paul Hoffman, Baltimore, Md., jailed March 22 for panhandling, became ill.

Hoffman was isolated in a North Main street rooming house.

At the Theaters

Joan Crawford, who is credited with setting more styles than any other film star, once again steps to the head of the fashion parade with her role in "Susan and God." As Susan, the star wears 25 Adrian creations which reflect forthcoming styles not only for spring and summer but for the winter of 1941 as well. In her last picture, "Strange Cargo," Miss Crawford wore only two costumes, one virtually in tatters and the other a cheap frock . . .

Dark-Haired Joan.

Joan Bennett, who has become even more alluring as a dark-haired glamour girl, is cast in a light comedy role as the heroine of the new screen romance, "The Housekeeper's Daughter" which is showing at the Madison theater. She is co-starred with Adolph Menjou. Miss Bennett appears as a modern-day sophisticate who causes collective flutterings in the hearts of five gentlemen, while Menjou portrays an ace newspaperman whose reputation is dependent on a series of wacky accomplishments. The co-feature is "A Chump at Oxford," starring that veteran comedy team, Laurel and Hardy.

Real Okies Prosper.

Prosperity came to more than one Oklahoma family with the production of "The Grapes of Wrath," the film showing at the Ohio theater. Several hundred "Okies" were used as extras for the picture. In addition many sold their broken-down cars to the studio for a price considerably better than they could have gotten in the open market. One migratory worker not only got both these windfalls but he also sold the studio two original songs to be used in the picture.

Story of Castles.

Beginning Tuesday at the Majestic theater will be "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," starring Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire. The second feature is Edward G. Robinson in "I Am the Law" with Barbara O'Neill, Wendy Barrie, Otto Kruger and John Beal. Robinson is seen as a mild-mannered college professor who over-night becomes a two-fisted whirlwind when drafted to wipe out a racketeering ring. Kruger is seen as a civic leader who, while encouraging and advising the fighting special prosecutor, suavely directs the crime ring Robinson is seeking to destroy.

Stories of Youth.

Based on an original story by Mark Hellinger, world-famous author and columnist, "The Roaring Twenties" deals with the exciting and incredible events of that fabulous period from the end of the World war to the stock market crash in 1929. James Cagney and Priscilla Lane have the leading roles in the picture which is showing at the Ritz theater. The second feature is "All Women Have Secrets" which stars Jean Cagney, Betty Moran and many other starlets.

East Side, Good and Bad.

"East Side Kids," the story of a hectic cop's fight to prevent slum kids from becoming killers of tomorrow, is being shown at the Park theater. Seventeen-year-old Frankie Burke, who first won screen fame with his portrayal of James Cagney as a boy in "Angels With Dirty Faces," has one of the leading roles. "Nurse Edith Cavell" is the second feature, with Anna Neagle in the title role. The manner in which this World war nurse smuggled war fugitives into neutral Holland, makes for drama and suspense.

WPA to Cut Work Rolls By 700,000 In Next 3 Months

SEEKS TO KEEP EXPENDITURES WITHIN BUDGET

Order Made as Congress Opens Study of Relief Bill, New Funds for Public Jobs.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—On the eve of congressional study of 1940-41 relief needs, the WPA decided today to cut its rolls by about 700,000 in the next three months.

The action is designed to keep work relief expenditures within the $1,477,000,000 allotted by congress for the year ending next June 30. WPA enrollment was 2,311,500 on March 20.

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner who made the announcement, will appear before the house appropriations committee this week to outline the administration's new relief proposals. It is generally expected that President Roosevelt will recommend a $1,000,000,000 WPA fund, as proposed in his budget last January.

Sentiment has been developing in several congressional quarters, however, for a larger appropriation on the ground that private industry is not absorbing substantial numbers of the unemployed.

The American Federation of Labor estimated last night that there were 10,572,000 unemployed in February, a reduction of 613,000 from the same month last year and of 84,000 from January.

Colonel Harrington explained that the WPA discharges would be gradual, with the April curtailment probably limited to 200,00. Workers will be dismissed as projects are finished, and then the least needed projects will be eliminated. The WPA has about $353,000,000 to spend until July 1. ...

Slash Funds $57,774,349.

Consideration of relief funds for the next fiscal year will be tied in with the congressional battle over economy. So far congress has cut the president's budget proposals $57,774,349, but that saving may be wiped out late this week if the senate increases house-approved funds for the navy.

First the senate will have to vote on extending the reciprocal trade program. Administration leaders expressed confidence, however, that complete victory on that issue was "in the bag."

Supporters argue that the opposition reached its high vote Friday in the balloting on an amendment to require senate ratification of each trade pact. That proposal was rejected 44 to 41.

The house was taking up minor legislation, but it received from the special Smith committee a majority report charging the national labor board with "overzealousness" and "predatory encroachment" on basic rights.

The 60,000-word statement was signed by Chairman Smith (D-VA) and Representatives Halleck (R-Ind) and Routzohn (R-Ohio). It presented arguments in support of their previous recommendations for 17 changes in the Wagner act, which include checks on board administration.

Women Voters Get Return Quiz From Candidate Davey

KENT—(UP)—Former Gov. Martin L. Davey today accused the Ohio League of Women Voters of remaining "strangely silent while Governor Bricker has raped the civil service."

Davey's charges were contained in a letter to Mrs. Simon Ross, Cincinnati, president of the league, evidently in reply to a questionnaire on civil service sent by the league to candidates for party nomination for governor.

"May I suggest, my dear lady, that before you question any of the candidates for state office on the subject of civil service, it is your duty to explain your strange silence in the face of Mr. Bricker's multiplied sins," Davey wrote.

"With all due respect, let me suggest that you need to set your own record straight before the voters of Ohio, as the first order of business."

Davey said that during his administration the "only times when we moved against a few people under civil service were in cases where they themselves had violated the law against pernicious political activity."

Up and Down THE STREET

Don Cram, Y. M. C. A. physical director, has escaped the bad luck jinx for some time, but Saturday night he had a double dose of trouble. First he lost his billfold which contained among other things, a large amount of money, his driver's license and his auto license certificate. Then, as an anti-climax, when Don left for home his car refused to start. He is offering a reward for the return of his billfold.

After this, Howard Hershey, Mansfield pole vault star, is not going to laugh off that "13 jinx." Hershey, who usually scales the bar at around 12 feet, was eliminated from the Tri-State interscholastic meet at Pittsburgh Saturday when he failed to get over the bar at the 10-foot bark. The number assigned to him at the meet was "613." A Pennsylvania youth won the event with a vault of 11 feet and six inches, which Hershey usually makes without much effort.

The candidates for county offices this year are trying to put "reader interest" into their campaign cards so they won't be thrown away after a glance. One of the candidates for treasurer has the Cleveland Indians' home schedule on the back of his cards, while another who wants the probate judge nomination lists the distances to important cities on his cards. Others utilize the other side of the card for a brief biography.

Even the Mansfield Braves of the Ohio State league feel the effects of the war in Europe. Seeking a hard-hitting outfielder it looked as though club officials had obtained an outstanding prospect when they signed Joseph William Doe, a Canadian, who hit .410 in the London Independent league last year. But when the Braves tried to bring him here for spring training they found that Doe was in the Essex Guard at Windsor and unless peace comes immediately, will not be playing any baseball this year.

THIRD TERM TO BE GIVEN TEST

Roosevelt and Garner Clash Tomorrow as Wisconsin Votes at Primary.

(By United Press)

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin voters choose tomorrow between President Roosevelt and Vice President John N. Garner in the first presidential primary in the nation to test the third term reaction, a test that will be binding upon delegates to the national nominating conventions.

Five slates of delegates will be before the electorate, three Democratic and two Republican. But the balance of power was expected to fall into the hands of the followers of former Gov. Philip F. La Follette's Progressive party who had no slate of their own in the election.

Wisconsin will send 24 delegates to each convention, two from each of the 10 congressional districts and four selected from the entire state.

The Democrats were divided into two war camps, those favoring the third term and those who supported Garner. The pro-Roosevelt camp was divided again, however, one slate designated as a "Roosevelt-Farley" delegation and the other a Roosevelt delegation endorsed by self-styled "liberals" of the party.

Garner Democrats directed their campaign against the third term principle rather than against Mr. Roosevelt personally and attacked "third termites" who, they said, sought to "ride into office again on the president's coat tails."

In the Republican primary, Thomas E. Dewey, New York "racket busting" district attorney, was opposed by U. S. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan. The name of neither was entered on the ballots, but delegations were announced pledged to them. U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio had refused to enter the Wisconsin primary and his refusal gave rise to reports that he sought to initiate a "stop Dewey" movement. Both Taft and Vandenberg denied the reports.

COAL INDUSTRY BIDS FOR WAR BUSINESS, ASKS U. S. FOR SHIPS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The soft coal industry appealed to congress for ships today so that it can get a bigger share of the emergency market created by Europe's urgent needs.

Officials of the Coal Exporters' association estimated that the U. S. could boost its coal export trade 50 per cent if the maritime commission were authorized to recondition more than 100 old government boats, now rotting at anchor.

Bituminous coal exports to European countries, whose normal sources of supply have been disrupted by the war, totaled 91,843 tons in February, and are estimated at approximately 200,000 tons for March, the Coal Exporters' association said. This is three times the normal pre-war rate, and was achieved despite tremendous transportation costs and shortage of boats.

Italy, faced with a serious shortage because of the British blockade on German exports, bought 18,954 tons of U. S. coal in January, despite total shipping charges of $20.10 per ton from West Virginia mines to Italian ports. The coal itself sold for about $2 per ton.

It was reported that coal is retailing in some Scandinavian towns for as high as $25 per ton.

"Export coal shipments are dependent upon available ships and at present are reported heavily handicapped by lack of boats," said A. C. Vansickler, secretary of the Coal Exporters' association.

"The maritime commission still holds over 100 so-called sterilized boats (boats over 20 years old) which could be reconditioned and either sold to neutral countries or utilized by the American government for shipping into non-combat areas. Meetings have been held recently between the coal, lumber, cotton and farm products exporters to discuss what action might be taken to bring about the desired result; namely, placing at least some of these boats in the foreign trade."

U. S. INSPECTORS CHECK RUIN OF CHARRED CRAFT

Plane Crashes Full Speed Into Sawdust Pile, Then Bursts Into Flames.

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash.—A mass of scorched, twisted wreckage was probed by inspectors for the civil aeronautics authority today to determine the cause of a Sunday plane crash which killed Miss Cora Sterling, 29-year-old aviatrix, and four joy-riding children.

The children were Janet, 8, and Charlene Taylor, 5, daughters of King county commissioner Jack Taylor, and Allen Taylor, 14, and James Taylor, 9, nephews of the commissioner.

Miss Sterling, the first woman to hold a transport pilot's license in Washington, took off with the young quartet in a single motored four-passenger plane owned by John C. Stevenson, prominent Seattle attorney and former county commissioner.

After 15 minutes in the air, Miss Sterling lowered the ship to an altitude of about 500 feet over Boeing field, the King county airport. It appeared at first she was leveling off for a landing.

Suddenly, however, the plane side slipped. Then it crashed full speed into a packed sawdust pile across the highway from the landing field.

The impact was so terrific that the nose of the plane was buried five feet. The gasoline tank exploded and set fire to the wreckage, preventing rescue efforts. Only after more than an hour were the cremated bodies of the five victims removed.

Stevenson collapsed as he stood with the helpless rescue squad at the scene.

Miss Sterling was described by acquaintances as "a woman ace," having flown planes throughout the northwest for more than 11 years.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

I think I will be the last of the town's midnight athletes to succumb to the bowling fad that has swept Broadway during the past few weeks. Chorines are going around with scarred thumbs, producers have charleyhorses in their pitching arms, and the most fragile of the stage belles are hopping in and out of Times Square tenpin palaces in slacks, sweaters, and gumsoled shoes, until it has reached the point where you can find more glamor in the Capitol bowling alleys than in El Morocco.

Last time I was in a bowling boite at 12:30 a. m. it glittered with Betty Grable, Irving Berlin, George Abbott, Ethel Merman, Hal LeRoy, Ronald Graham, Mary Jane Walsh, and an assortment of furiously athletic cuties.

This sport is not for me. I think bowling alleys are too masculine, too brashly lit, and too noisy. I would rather be on the Maginot Line, where the thunder is further away.

I wouldn't think of sitting through the circus without a box of crackerjack and a bag of peanuts . . . I love to ride behind a fast-traveling police motorcycle escort . . . If those Gay Nineties mustaches come into vogue again, I'll retire to a convent. Imagine Charles Boyer in handlebars!

Those baseball wrangles in the tap rooms of the town are exciting only because they are signs of spring . . . Bela Lugosi doesn't frighten me in films! he makes me titter . . . I envy Tallulah and Cobina for the utter exclusiveness of their given names . . . I'd love to see Kate Smith and Wynn Murray star in a musical comedy with a mother-and-daughter theme.

My ambition is to take a trip in a mass flight of pursuit ships zooming at 300 miles an hour in close formation, practically wing-tip to wing-tip. An aviator friend, who's done it, tells me it's a little like being in one of 30 taxis racing up Park ave., all trying to turn into 50th st. at the same time. . . .

I am always amused when I see Benay Venuta in "21" wearing a hat covered with real live roses . . . Taxi drivers are invariably verbally pugilistic, but I've never seen any of them battle with anything harder than a few well-chosen adjectives.

I'd like a telephone with headphones in my house, so I could scribble or polish my fingernails during those long conversations . . . I liked "Liliom" in the revival, probably chiefly because I'd never seen the play before and had no memories of better actors, jucier direction, but I wonder what kind of casting director could persuade himself that Burgess Meredith (even in built-up shoes) could create the illusion of "bullying" Ingrid Bergman.

I'd like to be on the deck of a freighter bound for Tahiti . . . The gamblers in Lindy's, debating odds before a big sporting event, or just munching their pickles and herring, look like a trailer for a Damon Runyon fiction story. . . ."

Nothing sounds quite as ad lib as the high cry of a rhumba musician . . . I don't like to watch window washers dangling on their little belts from a ledge 30 stories high. Gives me a sinking sensation . . . I think wasp-waisted corsets look wonderful in a Dali painting, but terrible on a girl . . . I'd like, just once, to ride on an elephant with a red velvet saddle.

Nothing is more pathetic than last year's football stars. Or as exciting as Joe Louis clambering through the ropes . . . Those gum-chewing camera girls at the Broadway spots make me shiver . . . I love all kinds of dogs, but I never can get through the first fifteen paragraphs of a fiction story about a Scottie.

My favorite hat check girls in town are Renee, who checks skimmers and wisecracks at Sardi's, and Irene Kearney, at The Barberry Room, who knits more sweaters than a chorus girl and reads more books than a Westchester librarian.

I see Moss Hart at all the first nights except his own. I'm told he stays in the office of the theater or at a nearby bar when his plays have their premieres, but his collaborator, George S. Kaufman, paces the rear of the theater and the side aisle like a caged playright . . . I like yellow cabs but I think yellow roadsters are terrible.

Street cleaners must be very quiet fellows; I've never heard a white-wing utter a sound. Mailmen are usually very chatty . . . Bert Wheeler always seems to be having as much fun as the audience does watching him.

I can't bear to look at crepe suzettes in glass jars on the grocers' shelves. I always thought a crepe suzette was something spontaneous, like love.

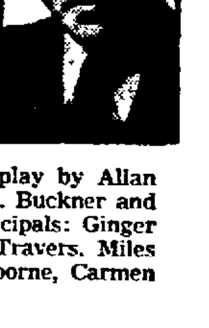

Nothing can make a dramatic scene funny quicker than the heroine's hat.

Ernest Hemingway has the best ear for human dialogue of any writer, anytime.

I've always wondered what flashes through a policeman's mind when he's confronted with a gun-shooting gangster. You'd imagine it would be an experience full of tense concentration or riotous fear—but two cops who once shot it out with robbers tell me they can't remember a single thing that crossed their minds at the time.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"The Primrose Path." Screenplay by Allan Scott and Gregory LaCava, from play by Robert L. Buckner and Walter Hart. Directed by Gregory LaCava. Principals: Ginger Rogers, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Rambeau, Henry Travers, Miles Mander, Queenie Vassar, John Carol, Vivienne Osborne, Carmen Morales.

* * * * *

Ginger Rogers went into court the other day and got herself a divorce from Lew Ayres, thus ending the long suspense. About the same time, Ginger went to the screen in this new picture and got herself another kind of degree, her B. A. as an emotional dramatic actress.

Where I'm concerned Ginger needn't have bothered. She gave satisfactory proof of her serious abilities in "Stage Door," and she was far better in the hilarious comedy of "Bachelor Mother." Taken any way she comes, whether it's tripping with Fred Astaire, or clowning with David Niven, or being tragic with Joel McCrea, as here, Ginger is easy to take. She keeps striving to prove her versatility, and here she proves it once and for all.

To take the "Primrose Path," however, is not so easy. As a daring and artful exploration of the seamy side of life it has much to commend it; LaCava couldn't direct a bad picture, if he tried.

This one is anything but dull, bordering as it frequently does on the shocking, going to extremes in the depiction of sordidness which the screen hasn't known in several years. This of course is realism for "The Primrose Path" is the story of a girl's attempt to escape from the degradation in which her family exists. It is not a pretty story, obviously. Neither is it challenging nor inspiring, nor particularly moving, although it engenders a degree of pity—more than a degree for the girl who would escape, and for her little sister who must grow up in such environment.

Ellie May lives on Primrose Hill, a squalid section near the beach, with her once brilliant drunken father, her little sister, her harridan of a grandmother, her easy-living mother whose "good times" provide grocery and gin money.

When Ellie May falls in love with a decent beach youngster (McCrea) she marries him, pretending that her "strict" folks have cast her out for going with him. There's hell to pay when finally, after the mother pauses at their hamburger stand on one of her good times, Ellie May takes Joe to visit the old homestead.

The boy ganders the set-up and leaves in a huff. The drunken father shoots the mother. Joe comes back, but good old Granny with an eye on a meal ticket, tells him Ellie May has run over to Frisco with a rich gent. Ellie May is in the house at the time, waiting and pining for Joe. So when he doesn't come, Ellie May finally listens to Grandma's outspoken hints about following in mother's primrosy footsteps. She's saved on the brink by Joe's return, and Joe tells off Granny, at the same time giving her money, probably to forestall any vagrant notions the old girl herself might have.

On the whole, despite the young romance, "The Primrose Path" tends toward the lid-off-the-garbage-can school of drama, which is a fine thing for those that like it. In the instance, teacher, may I be excused? I wanna go get another chuckle or two out of "Tobacco Road."

Politicians Eye Wisconsin Test of Party Strength

GARNER VIES WITH F.D.R. IN BALLOT TILT

Dewey and Vandenberg Seeking Republican Delegates By Opposite Methods.

POLITICAL CALENDAR

Tuesday.

Kansas -- 6th congressional district Republicans to select two delegates to national convention.

New York—State primary to elect national convention delegates from 43 congressional districts (Democrats with 96 votes and Republicans with 84).

Wisconsin — Presidential preference primary to elect 24 delegates to national conventions.

Thursday.

Kansas—Republican state convention, Wichita, to select 4 delegates-at-large to national convention and confirm 14 delegates selected at district conventions.

Maine—Republican state convention, Portland, to select 13 delegates to national convention.

Saturday.

Arizona — Democratic state convention, Phoenix, to select 6 delegates to national convention.

Washington, D. C. — Socialist party national convention to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Wisconsin presidential primaries tomorrow have captured the interest of politicians here for two reasons:

1. They will provide the first test of strength of Democratic and Republican candidates at the ballot box.

2. They mirror the campaign technique of presidential contenders, avowed and otherwise, which varies in some degree with every aspirant.

The Democratic contest for Wisconsin's 24 convention votes pits Vice President Garner against two slates of delegates favoring President Roosevelt. The latter has won all 24 delegates selected so far in other states, where he faced virtually no opposition.

The Republican balloting tomorrow will bring Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney, together in their first pre-convention clash and may determine to some extent how far each goes in future primaries.

But added interest is occasioned by the fact that the strategy employed by each candidate leading up to the Wisconsin tests reflects exactly the manner of their campaigns from the beginning of talk about 1940 politics.

For example, President Roosevelt did nothing to discourage the filing of delegates for him nor did he withdraw his name from the preference ballot, as he could have done if he desired.

Neither the chief executive nor Garner is making any political speeches. The vice president, however, is an avowed candidate and in each of the five primaries he has entered he has given formal consent, whether required or not.

On the Republican side, the technique varies just as widely. Vandenberg has entered the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries through filings by friends. He does not believe in a stumping tour. He thinks the nomination should seek the man.

Dewey got on the stump early and has been there periodically ever since, his last swing having been through Wisconsin and Illinois. He has entered the Illinois and Nebraska primaries next week. His organization, too, is extensive.

TRAFFIC TOLL HELD DOWN TO 2

Three Galion Residents Hurt on Way to Columbus; No Accidents in City.

Although the weather was ideal for driving over the week-end, Ohio's traffic toll was held to a minimum as only two persons lost their lives in mishaps, while in Mansfield there were no accidents to mar the after Easter week-end.

Three well-known Galion residents were injured in a head-on collision Saturday near Westerville as they were en route to Columbus.

Injured were Armin Hornstein, driver of the car, and his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Hornstein. They were treated at a Columbus hospital and then returned to their home. George Hornstein suffered severe head lacerations, lacerations of the nose and back and leg bruises, while Mrs. Hornstein received severe head lacerations, a sprained ankle, a broken finger, torn tendons in her left leg and body bruises. The driver received body bruises.

Bernard Hornstein and Dan Harland, also in the car, escaped injuries.

The Hornstein car collided head-on with a car driven by a Westerville man, whose name was not learned. Both cars were demolished.

Dr. J. G. Shirer, 65, Newark physician, was killed almost instantly when struck by an auto as he crossed the street to his office. An auto-pedestrian accident at Dayton resulted fatally for John Cheetham, 67, an unemployed waiter. Joseph Kruso, 26, was slightly injured when he was struck by a second car as he alighted from his machine after it struck Cheetham.

Twenty persons were injured, two critically, as a chartered bus en route to the Arrow club in Geauga county and an automobile collided at Stow's corners near Akron last night.

Seriously injured were two occupants of the car, Mrs. Helen Dix, 33, and Joseph DeAngel, 45, both of Ravenna. Sixteen bus passengers were treated by physicians at the scene and two at hospitals.

SEWER RENTAL TRIAL DELAYED

Mrs. Gatton's Attorney Fails to Appear; Hearing Now Set for Thursday.

Jury trial of a case testing Mansfield's sewer rental ordinance was postponed today until Thursday morning to permit Mrs. Druzella Gatton, Mansfield, who started the action, to employ new counsel.

A special jury had assembled at the courthouse this morning to hear the case with Judge P. H. Wieland of Morrow county scheduled to preside by special assignment.

Mrs. Gatton asked for time to employ counsel when her attorney, J. L. Mason of Ashland, failed to appear.

Mrs. Gatton, who lives at 432 South Main street, filed the suit, asking $150 damages from the city of Mansfield after the water supply was turned off at her home last May for alleged non-payment of sewer rental.

The city then filed a cross-petition, seeking a judgment for $4.21, the amount of the unpaid rental. The sewer rental ordinance, enacted about three years ago, assessed a sewer charge to be collected with the water bill.

Mrs. Gatton paid the water bill, but allegedly refused to pay the sewer charge. Trial of the case will determine whether the city can legally shut off both services for non-payment of the sewer charge.

BEAM APPOINTED NAVY ALTERNATE

Son Of Mansfield Attorney Hopes To Enter Annapolis.

Lydon H. Beam, jr., Mansfield Senior high school pupil and son of Atty. and Mrs. Lydon H. Beam, had been nominated today as first alternate for appointment to the U. S. Naval cademy at Annapolis, Md.

Nicholas Andrew Evans of Newark was nominated for the post by Congressman J. Harry McGregor of the 17th district. Should young Beam top him, however, in a final examination April 17 the Mansfield youth stands a good chance to get the appointment.

Beam is 18 and will graduate from Senior high school in June.

Congressman McGregor named Jack Barnard of Mt. Vernon as second alternate and Lewis B. Coover, jr., of Ashland, third alternate. The appointment is for four years service in the navy.

DECLARES CANCER INCREASES IN U. S., 140,000 TOLL IN 1939

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service, declared today that cancer is increasing in the United States.

"It is becoming more and more important as both a personal and a public health problem," Parren said in an interview at the start of "cancer-control month" designated by a proclamation of President Roosevelt.

The increase is caused in large part, he explained, by the advancing average age of the population. Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the country, having taken more than 140,000 lives during the last year.

"Early diagnosis and treatment would have undoubtedly prevented the deaths of thousands of these people," Dr. Parran said.

He advocated that every state and county develop an educational organization cooperating with the American Society for the Control of Cancer and the Women's Field Army to spread the knowledge that cancer can be controlled. These educational organizations, he said, should promote formation of cancer diagnostic clinics, free laboratory service for physicians for examination of suspected cancerous tissues, and training of physicians in the latest diagnostic and treatment periods.

"A great deal is known about cancer but a great deal more remains to be learned in the comprehensive, coordinated research drive against it," Dr. Parran said. "We know, for instance, that certain coal tars and petroleum products will produce it, that heredity plays an important part, and that the sex harmones have some relationship to the causation of cancer.

Business-Like Miss Swarthout Here For Concert

schedule, but Miss Swarthout likes it.

Concert work at the Metropolitan are her first loves, she says, though radio and the movies have their points.

"I especially like to sing in smaller cities," said Miss Swarthout, "audiences are likely to be much more receptive and appreciative than in the larger cities."

Alighting from the Pennsylvania train wearing a smart mantailored tweed suit with a matching cap and a mink coat thrown across her shoulders, Miss Swarthout and her accompanist, Lester Hodges, were met by Rev. D. N. Roller, retiring president of the Civic Music association and Mrs. Paul F. Cropper, general chairman of the 1940-41 campaign, which opened today.

Miss Swartout disclosed that the war had interfered with plans for a European concert tour, although she still has hopes that she may be able to sing in some of the neutral countries. There's also a chance of a South American tour. And the movies have made what she calls a "very flattering offer, but she hasn't made up her mind about that yet.

Miss Swarthout, a mezzo-soprano, sings at Senior high auditorium at 8:15 p. m. today. Admisison is by Civic Music membership card only.

SUSPECT REDS IN SINKING OF FREIGHT SHIP

Dies Committee Learns of Possible Sabotage; Two Face Questioning.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Dies committee has information that sinking in Baltimore harbor 10 days ago of the 27,000-ton freighter Panamanian may have been instigated by Communist party members, it was learned today.

Committee investigators, it was ascertained, have been conferring secretly on this angle of the case with federal authorities who are inquiring into possible sabotage of the vessel.

Two Baltimore Communist officials, who have been subpoenaed by the committee, will be questioned closely to determine if there was any knowledge of the asserted plot in inner party circles, investigators declared.

The Panamanian, with $1,000,000 worth of cargo destined for England, apparently was scuttled at her dock by someone who opened a port door near the waterline. The ship quickly settled to the harbor bottom, and the cargo has been declared lost.

As a possible Communist motive for the sinking, observers pointed out that party officials who have testified recently have announced themselves out of sympathy with England and what they term Britain's "imperialistic war."

Meanwhile, the committee today continued pressing its investigation of Communist activities in and around the capital—the first phase of what has been disclosed as a nationwide drive against asserted subversive elements.

Dr. Albert E. Blumberg, state Communist secretary for Maryland and the District of Columbia, was ordered to return to the committee witness stand for further questioning, including a quiz about the Panamanian sinking.

With recalling of Blumberg, the committee planned to vote a contempt citation against him as was done with two Pittsburgh Communists. All three have refused to answer questions asked by committee members.

The committee also planned to hear from Sam Banks, Maryland state secretary for the Young Communist league, the other party official subpoenaed in the Baltimore headquarters.

Three party leaders subpoenaed in Boston will be called to testify later, it was announced.

U. S. INDICTS 20

Clevelanders Accused in New Cemetery Lot Fraud Case.

CLEVELAND—(AP) — A federal grand jury today indicted Christian W. Beck, Cleveland promoter, and 19 other persons for conspiracy and using mails to defraud in connection with sale of cemetery lots.

Indicted with Beck were four officials and 15 salesmen of the First Refunding Co. and the Capital Corp., firms allegedly organized by Beck to dispose of lots in the $8,000,000 Crown Hill Memorial park cemetery project.

Emerich B. Freed, U. S. district attorney, said that 30 witnesses who appeared before the grand jury reported they turned over as high as $10,000 in building and loan company passbooks to salesmen of the two companies in return for cemetery lots. The salesmen told them the lots would appreciate to a much higher value, but they were unable to dispose of them at a profit. Freed said the witnesses complained.

FORMER DEPUTY ROBBER VICTIM

Home Ransacked, $45 Stolen, He Tells Police; Two Other Thefts Reported.

Police today were investigating a series of week-end thefts, including the burglary of a former deputy sheriff's residence.

Charles M. Yarman, 282 Second avenue, the former deputy, came home last night and found his home ransacked and $45 missing, he told police.

Officers said the thief, after ransacking the upstairs bedrooms, left a purse and a pair of trousers, which he apparently carried to the first floor, lying on the kitchen table. Yarman said the doors were not locked.

Ralph Switzer, a janitor at the Park theater, called police at 9 a. m. yesterday when he reported for work and found a candy vending machine broken open. Loot was estimated at $10 in change, taken from the cash box.

Police were told a side exit door was found open, leading them to believe some boys had hid in the theater until after it had closed Saturday night.

Mrs. Corrine Tison, Fostoria, reported to police last night that two men, one of which she said, she believed was colored, robbed her of $21 near the B. & O. railroad station on North Mulberry street, about 10 p. m. and fled in an old model automobile.

Mrs. Tison said one of the men grabbed her purse, took out a coin purse containing the money and then threw the pocketbook on the ground as the pair fled to their car.

MOTORISTS STILL STANDING IN LINE FOR AUTO LICENSES

With yesterday the last day for motorists to drive their cars with 1939 license plates, Mansfielders today made a rush on the Richland County Auto club to secure the new tags.

Warned by authorities that anyone found driving after midnight Sunday with 1939 plates, one Mansfielder, Jack Flaiz, 24, of 196 Helen avenue, was arrested early today by police on charges of failure to obtain 1940 plates. He will be arraigned in municipal court Tuesday morning.

Motorists stood in line at the Auto club this morning and afternoon in an effort to get plates so they could take their cars out of the garage again. Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock said that only 10,789 drivers had purchased their new tags when the club closed its doors Saturday night.

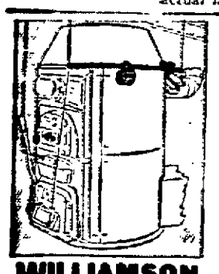

Over 4,000 car owners in Richland county were still without new plates today, Beverstock said. The club office was open for four hours yesterday for the benefit of motorists, but only 40 sets of plates were sold, he added.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1940.

Sumner Welles says he's "glad to get back"—even if he didn't get into Russia on his trip.

Optimism is a wonderful trait and word comes that Duluth is cheerfully looking forward to an August thaw.

It was Franklin D. Roosevelt who said, in 1932, "Taxes are paid out of the sweat of every man's brow"—since which time the perspiration has become even more profuse.

Trade Barriers Between States

FROM general talk about interstate trade barriers, the Tax Policy League gets down to facts and figures. This research group, examining all phases of American taxation, reports that more than 1,000 complex legislative trade barriers are now in existence, interfering with the flow of trade between states.

There are "use" taxes on out-of-town products in 47 states. Eleven states have "ports of entry," similar to European customs stations. In 19 states there are discriminatory levies on chain stores. That is not so many as there were because some states have changed their minds about such taxes and discontinued them.

Farmers in 31 states have succeeded in getting themselves "protected" with oleomargarine laws. Nine states exact fees from non-state motor carriers.

So it goes. Says the Tax Policy League's report:

"Altogether, the picture is a discouraging one, and one of the worst things about it is that the American citizen, without realizing what is happening to him, is losing his time-honored privilege of trading freely in all parts of his native land."

Such free domestic trade was one of the main purposes for the organization of the United States. Under the "Articles of Confederation" it was found that trade barriers were ruining the colonies.

Progress In Aerial Warfare

THAT 70-TON BOMBER the Douglas Aircraft company is building for the U. S. army will be able to carry a "pay load" of men or bombs weighing 28 tons. It could cross the Atlantic and return without landing. Its propellers will be 16 feet in diameter and it will have a wing spread of 210 feet. The speed will be between 200 and 300 miles an hour.

The cost is estimated at $1,000,000. This is considerable money to put into one plane, which might conceivably be disabled by a single well-placed shot. But in quantity production the cost would be lowered, and several dozen such air cruisers could be built and operated for the cost of one modern warship.

Moreover, the recent trend of the European war suggests more and more aerial operations. Land troops so far have been immobilized. There has been naval activity, but in that field a considerable superiority on one side tends to drive the minority fleet to inaction.

Either side, or any participant, can take to the air for reconnaissance or bold forays, as has been done lately by British and German air fleets. There has been amazing progress in military planes and their use.

Report Made to Employes

WHEN the responsibilities and difficulties of ownership and management are more generally understood by industrial workers there will be fewer acrimonious disputes and less frequent resort to costly strikes as a means of adjusting differences.

While it has been common practice for large corporations to make annual reports to stockholders, General Motors is carrying this a step further by making a complete and easily understandable report for distribution among its 220,000 employes.

An eight-page report is devoted to plain statement of facts, with figures, charts and graphs to show just how this corporation handled and distributed the $1,377,000,000 received from sales of all of its products last year.

The way in which each dollar of sales income was divided is interesting. Out of each dollar, for instance, 47 3-5 cents went out for materials, supplies and freight; 28 cents for wages; 11 3-5 cents as dividends; 7 2-5 cents for taxes; 3 1-10 cents for renewals and equipment, while only three-fifths of one cent went to executive management—a recognized essential of every industrial or business operation.

It will be noted that almost half of the total is represented by cost of materials, supplies and freight, which, in turn, was distributed in the form of wages to employes of other concerns in practically every state in the union.

Rapidly increasing taxation demands to meet costs of federal, state and local government are revealed in the fact that in 1939 General Motors paid 102 million dollars, or $523 per employe in the United States, for taxes—$28 on each $100 of its payroll.

Among difficulties encountered by industrial and business management involving thousands — or even hundreds — of employes, is to personalize interest in each of these, and a report to employes, as well as to stockholders, is a meritorious innovation which may well be expected to result in better understanding of mutual interests.

Meade's Ranch Gains Prominence

DO YOU KNOW where the central or focal point of this country is? The name is worth remembering. It is Meade's ranch, about twelve miles north of Lucas, in Osborne county Kansas. There is a stone tablet there, set in a block of concrete. The central point on the tablet is in north latitude 39 degrees and 50 minutes and 26,686 seconds, and longitude 98 degrees and 32 minutes and 30,506 seconds west of Greenwich.

That point was fixed last September by a group of geographers, geologists, weather men and mining engineers representing the International Union of Geodesists and Geophysicists. This spot has already been accepted by Canada and Mexico as the central point of reference for all North America. And probably it will be likewise recognized as a point of reference for the whole 57,000,000,000 square miles of land on this globe.

Our national capitol and all the state capitols are linked with it now by surveys, and likewise the Eifel Tower in Paris and the Royal Observatory in London, and so it goes. Buy a mountain in Central Africa or a farm in Australia, and sooner or later the surveyors will tell you just how many miles, rods, feet, inches and fractions thereof it is from your door to Meade's ranch, and give you a compass bearing.

The effort is being revived to hit upon a pleasanter sounding word than spinster or old maid—but the more euphonious "bachelor girl" seems to lack necessary scope.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD THE FORTY NINER — Get out a map of the U. S. and draw a line between New York and Virginia City, Nev.

Virginia City is 21 miles to the west and a little to the north of Reno. Somewhere along this line, this train is bowling across bleak landscapes which, in a few months, will be green with growing corn.

But don't think about corn now. Think about Virginia City. This is a junket to Virginia City, or rather the ghost of it. Seventy years ago Virginia City was the wildest boom town west of the Mississippi: it was the scene of incredible bonanzas, a mining camp where the vigilantes wrote their activities in wisecracks on cemetery tombstones.

Sometimes things happen to a country that can't be adequately explained, like Swing and Ann Sheridan and the New Deal. Virginia City was that way, too; it just happened. But the real Virginia City, the old border-bordello boom town of Comstock days, doesn't exist any more. All that remains is a legend, a ghost locked up in a silver locket.

WHAT happens to a ghost when the movies come along—as Warner Brothers came to Virginia City recently—and pry open the locket? That's the purpose of this junket, to find out. But before you can appreciate what is happening today, you've got to know what happened—when.

Get out a broom with stiff bristles on it and sweep away the years and the dust. If you sweep hard enough, you'll strike pay dirt. You'll strike silver, and the Comstock lode, and the ghost of Edwin Booth playing Hamlet at Piper's Opera house. This is the town where Mark Twain worked as a writer on the old Territorial Enterprise, and where the riders customarily shod their horses with silver shoes, because it was showy, and silver was easier to get hold of than iron.

In those days, they say 40,000 people were there; today, there are only about 500. The old town itself — the shell — looks pretty much the same, with its plank casinos and loose board walk. The main difference is that the tents are gone, and most of the gold, and a man can walk across C. Street at night without the danger of getting hit by a forty-four slug.

A COUPLE of weeks ago, the movies moved in on Virginia City. They came in trainloads. They set up loud speakers. They festooned the streets. And they put on a mardi gras that perhaps no ghost town has witnessed since "Dodge City." The purpose of this was the world premiere of Warner's picture, "Virginia City."

But that was two weeks ago. The old town has had a chance to get back its breath, and maybe its perspective. We're going out there, and look around and see. It should be fun walking those old streets where the bordello jennies used to slug ever so engagingly to the sourdoughs, and where that thing you thought was a cry was only roulette wheels whining.

We'll get there day after tomorrow. The porter just stuck his head through the door and announced briefly we're coming into Omaha. Once I spent a whole summer in Omaha, one of the nicest towns I was ever in.

This porter is a live wire. His name is Radford Brook Petty, and he comes from South Carolina. In 16 years of portering on pullmans, the most interesting passenger he ever served was the late Floyd Gibbons. He names Gibbons without hesitation. Gibbons, it finally leaked out, once bought him a dinner and gave him a $13 tip.

How U. S. Rates In Meat-Eating.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Don't Americans eat too much meat? Do they eat more meat than people of other countries?

The actual statistics show that in the year 1937, the last year for which figures were available, the United States averaged 137 pounds of meat per person, as compared to 300 pounds for Argentine, 205 for Australia, and 138 for Canada.

The United States consumes a quarter as much lamb per average capita as the inhabitants of the British Isles. If the consumption of meats and lard were increased in the United States to equal the four leading meat-eating countries, we would have to produce 10,000,000 more cattle, or 60 per cent more slaughter. If the entire increase fell on hogs, we would have to produce 80,000,000, or 150 per cent more than the present total annual slaughter.

Are doughnuts indigestible?

This is an old prejudice which is based on the belief that doughnuts are made of fat which causes them to "lay on the stomach." Physiologists, however, tell us that it is not fat itself which is indigestible, but the method by which is is incorporated into the foods.

In making old-fashioned doughnuts, deep frying fat was the method used, and it was common for this fat to be broken down because of the lack of temperature control, which produces insoluble acids, the true culprits of indigestion. When doughnuts are made with the best fats, they are not indigestible.

Doughnuts are also very nutritious, having 49 per cent carbohydrates, 45 per cent fat, and six per cent protein which is quite a well-balanced fuel for the human engine.

Is farming the safest occupation?

No. Reports show that farming is an exceedingly dangerous occupation, the hazards of which are not universally appreciated. Fractures, lacerations, contusions, incised wounds, dislocations, burns, frostbites, gunshot wounds — all these are natural occupational hazards of farming. These injuries are inflicted by tools, animals, machines, vehicles, falling trees, heat and cold.

In a medium-sized rural hospital, agricultural accidents were responsible for nearly one-fourth of all the injuries treated.

Listen, World!

Nuisance Value.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S an amusing bit from a friend's letter:

"My cat sits here and looks at me with bored eyes because I don't pay any attention to her. Pretty soon she'll come over and bite me, for the same reason. She's just like some people . . . TRIES TO GIVE HERSELF NUISANCE VALUE WHEN SHE FEELS IGNORED."

Nuisance Value . . . that's what you used frequently, when you were five. Remember? Company visiting. Grown folk sitting around, discussing their own affairs . . . paying no attention to little you. You wanted to be paid attention to . . . you wanted AWFULLY to be paid attention to. You fidgeted. Made small noises. Ventured sociable remarks. But not an eye or ear was turned your way. Rage and rebellion rose within your small soul. Such ignominy was not to be borne! You'd MAKE them pay attention to you. So you YELLED! And instantly you had the stage.

"What is it . . . what IS it, darling?" they cried.

SOBBINGLY, you explained that you had a dreadful pain. You had! But it wasn't where they thought. It was in your young egotism. Now, having cornered their attention, that was blissfully assuaged.

THAT was Nuisance Value . . . as acquired by little persons of five. But many persons prolong Nuisance Value far beyond five. There's Ena Weeks, for example. Ena Weeks was one of those pretty, pouty, petty packages that strong men sometimes marry in absent-minded moments. Years ago, Joe Weeks realized that he'd made a terrible mistake. He stuck it out manfully . . . tried to act the part of the devoted husband . . . but Ena saw through it. Tears, tantrums and sulks failed to revive his interest, but Ena found a way out. She went in for Sick Headaches — Minor Operations—Nervous Prostrations. Life became just one Sick Spell after another for Ena. Joe might want to forget her, but how could he?

ENA HAD HIM HOG-TIED WITH HER NUISANCE VALUE.

THE typical Office Pest . . . that's another example. Usually, it's some disappointed older woman or disgruntled man who has wanted to be Somebody, but never arrived. So they satisfy their rankling souls by making everyone else miserable . . . meddling, investigating, tattling . . . ACHIEVE NUISANCE VALUE.

Writers and other public servants are particularly plagued by such creatures. Some envious Richard Roe or Mary Doe in Brownsville or Greenfield, who wanted to be Big Punkins but didn't make the grade, and who gets mad every time he or she sees someone else's name in print. So they write sneering anonymous notes and dare you to print 'em. Playing for publicity by working up a Nuisance Value.

* * *

EVER since the war our whole country has been overrun by similar pests. People who have never been able to create Important Business of their own so they achieve power and place by meddling in other people's business. Reforms are their meat. As long as they can reform or Investigate something, raise some sort of a rumpus, they're happy. For thereby they get attention. Human mosquitoes! Nuisance Value—they have it, and how!

Ohio Anecdotes

Archeologists.

DANIEL WEBSTER, who traveled in Ohio in 1833, encouraged Edwin H. Davis, a Kenyon university student, to continue his study of archeology after attending a lecture by the young man.

Davis often had explored the earthworks of the moundbuilders strewn about the countryside near Hillsboro, where he was born in 1811. Despite his primary interest he abondoned archeology because it would not yield him a livelihood, turning instead to medicine.

At 27 he was graduated in medicine and began practice at Chillicothe, where he remained until 1850. He continued his archeology study meanwhile.

At his own expense Davis explored more than 100 Ohio mounds, assisted by E. G. Squier. The Smithsonian Institution published their records, thereby establishing both as authorities. Their work still is regarded as an erudite source work.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Let Us Be Kind.

So let us go along the path
Remembering to be
Kind to our fellow travelers,
And let us always see

Distress, and reach a helping hand.
How short the patterned way.
And none of us can know its end,
Tomorrow or today

Let us be kind, in kindness rests
Nobility, heart's ease
That points beyond the compass of Earth's boast of lands and seas.

WASHINGTON—The inner circle advocates of a $1,500,000,000 WPA budget have won their fight in the White House.

They have convinced Roosevelt that his original $1,000,000,000 estimate was too low, and he has authorized WPA Administrator Harrington to tell the house appropriations committee that the president now favors an additional half billion—which would bring the WPA budget up to this year's level.

Harrington appears before the committee today. In addition to the confidential Roosevelt message, he will give the committee an economic report showing a marked decline in business since January 1 and a heavy increase in unemployment. According to Harrington's figures, the demand for relief is greater now than at any time since the winter of 1938.

Two influences won over Roosevelt. One was Mayor LaGuardia of New York, who painted a very doleful economic picture and told him the cities could not increase their relief loads, that the federal government must handle the problem. The other was a confidential treasury report on the recent income tax payments.

The figures showed around $100,000,000 more than treasury estimates, for a total of $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 over 1939 receipts.

Strongly economy minded, Secretary Morgenthau was keeping this information secret, for fear that if it leaked out the spenders would gobble up the excess. But the inner circle got wind of the cache and used it as a trump card to win over Roosevelt on the WPA issue.

Uninformed.

YOU know just as much as Mrs. Roosevelt does about the president's plans regarding a third term. She has no idea what he will do, has not discussed the matter with him and does not intend to.

"That's a decision," she says, "that a man must make for himself."

Note—In a chat with an old friend during his illness last week, Roosevelt gave a possible clue to his trend of thought in this reflective observation: "Teddy tried for a third term but couldn't make it."

Silent Jack.

DURING the 1939 battle over the original Hatch bill, barring federal employes from political activity, Vice President Garner issued his first statement on a legislative issue. Said he to newsmen, "You can quote me as saying that this bill will pass."

But during the bitter two-weeks' battle over the latest Hatch bill, extending the politics ban to state machines, Garner said not one word, spent little time in the chair during the debate, while a number of his closest cronies were in the van in the effort to defeat the measure.

Note—Since the inclusion of the senate amendment limiting political contributions to $5,000, the Hatch bill is now referred to in congressional cloakrooms as the "You - Can - Sin - Up - to - Five - Grand" bill.

Manicured Truck Driver.

SELDOM has the capital's young social set been so a-twitter as over the news that Beatrice Phillips, popular daughter of the U. S. ambassador to Italy, was leaving for France to do her bit in the war.

Attractive and chestnut-haired, she sails April 6 to drive an ambulance for the American Friends of France, organized by Miss Anne Morgan, ardently Francophile sister of the Wall Street tycoon. The other afternoon at a cocktail party, Miss Phillips was the center of an admiring throng who bombarded her with questions.

"Heavens, Bee," exclaimed a debutante chum, "here you suddenly announce you are leaving for France on this perfectly exciting adventure, and no one has had a chance to talk to you about it. Where in the world have you been keeping yourself all winter?"

"I've been taking a first aid course at Red Cross headquarters during the day," she said, "and working nights in a garage."

"In a garage! Whatever were you doing there?".

"Oh," said Miss Phillips, fingering her exquisite coiffure with a smartly manicured hand, "just learning to change tires. That's part of the job, you know."

Comeback.

THE WORKERS ALLIANCE, badly hit after last year's curtailed WPA bill, has quietly been staging a comeback in recent months. It now has a dues paying membership of close to 300,000 in 2,000 locals in 45 states.

An important factor in this revival was a ruling, issued by WPA Administrator Harrington on direct orders of the president, that the clause in the WPA bill barring relief to anyone advocating "overthrow of the government by force or violence" did not apply to Alliance members. Both Roosevelt and Harrington gave the Alliance a clean bill of health.

War Neckties.

WHEN the war department goes shopping for neckties, it goes the whole hog. It went to Philadelphia the other day and bought $36,225 worth of black neckties for enlisted men.

This was part of a general purchase of supplies, which included $13,597 for mosquito bars, $32,513 for bath towels, $985 for "moving of dope building," Patterson Field, Ohio, and $12,250 for embroidered shoulder-sleeve insignia for the CCC.

Note—This last contract went to Herbert Lehmann, Inc., of New York City. He is not the governor, who spells his name Lehman.

Merry-Go-Round.

FEW know that Civil Aeronautics Chairman Robert Hinckley, to promote interest in aviation among students, offered three prizes at the last annual meeting of the National Intercollegiate Flying club, $300, $150 and $50, for the best essays on the subject of "The Cultural Value of Flying." Judges of the contest are a group of aviation experts. . . . Trust-busting Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold is writing a book on the history of the Sherman Anti-Trust law for its fiftieth anniversary on July 2. . . . The new Hatch bill as passed by the senate is a lot tougher than is generally realized. Section 14, an amendment inserted by Senator M. M. Neely of West Virginia, is a death blow to state political machines built up on Two Per Cent Clubs." The provision bars all forced contributions.

The Good Earth

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

GRAY grizzled winter made one last long stand. Then snow and ice retreated from our valley and a few days later left the wooded hills. New warm spring rain and fog that blots out all common sights give evidence that ice needles within the earth are yielding to the warmth above.

I stepped upon the loose dirt of the garden and sank in to my ankles. What a reservoir for air and water, I thought, and what a wealth of food for plants is released in this mysterious laboratory beneath my feet!

Here in this moist fragrant mold, the long slimy earthworms live happily and well and aid marvelously in the vital work of soil disintegration. Ants and termites sink great deep wells into its bosom, bring humus and spores that mingle with the common clay and make it dark and rich. The mole swims through this element in search of larvae. The snake keeps deep burrows open and gophers are always making new homes that bring the darkness of the soil to light and air.

Here in this same ground teem myriads of bacteria that break down organic tissue and mix it with the clay. These microorganisms live one short hour, perhaps, and then go back to richer dust.

Larger grasses anchor deeply in this satisfying soil. Sweet clover's fleshy tap root penetrates the hardest subsoil 10 or 15 feet. Alfalfa roots often exceed 25. A thrifty hedge goes down 50 feet and our great oaks and elms reach a hundred feet for food and anchorage, with a lateral spread of half that distance. There is no place where life is more abundant or death more natural.

Nature may seem prodigal with her seeds and flowers upon the surface, but within the dark confines of soil there is no loss. All forms of decay surge into life again, and the cycle turns once more.

It is not sad to know that even the body of man finds here its final resting place and sleeps and changes, filling all the surrounding clods with lusty growth. Stevenson's lines of epitaph were not sad lines:

"Gladly I lived and I gladly die,
And I lay me down with a will.
This be the verse you grave for me.
'Here he lies where he longed to be
Home is the sailor, home from the sea
And the hunter home from the hill.'
